Tears and Income

Much in Five Words

He Borrows $65,000,000

Poor Old Britannia

— By Arthur Brisbane —

IF YOU HAVE TEARS to shed, and any considerable income earned in New York State, prepare to shed the tears and part of the income. Governor Roosevelt of New York announces his plan for dealing with unemployment, and the plan is A 50 PER CENT INCREASE IN STATE INCOME TAX.

Please believe that tears shed when that news spreads will not be crocodile tears.

Colonel Lindbergh talked in Japan yesterday. Many heard him here, across the thousands of miles.

The American flier put an important fact in five words:

"There are no distant countries."

The world is so small, you are inclined to ask, impatiently:

"How long must we wait to go to Mars and see something new?"

Mark, real estate men, and you that want to borrow money on mortgage and can't, mark it also.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is improving New York city with a gigantic construction program that will show what money, intelligently spent, can do for a big town.

His is a big program, amounting to about $250,000,000 in all.

Nobody keeps $250,000,000 "loose," so Mr. Rockefeller is borrowing $65,000,000, just to go on with, from Mr. Frederick H. Ecker, head of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

This is to be the largest real estate loan ever made on the surface of this round, whirling and depressed globe.

You read, "American and French bankers GRANT loan to Britain." That word "grant" must sound strange to British ears. When the war was on, Britain was rushing billions to France and elsewhere on the continent, sending other billions here to our industrialists and bankers.

Now, French and American bankers "grant" to Britain a loan less than one-tenth the amount that the British poured out to win the war.

They won it, but WAR DOES NOT PAY, and they know that now.

The Shipping Board, under the President's direction, will presently decide the ownership of Leviathan and other Shipping Board boats. The bidders are both good American concerns, the West and East coasts competing. The Dollar Line interests and Herbert Fleishhacker represent the Pacific coast. In the East, an American company, with Kermit Roosevelt, son of President Roosevelt, and Vincent Astor, would like the lines. In neither case would there be any foreign interest in the ownership.

In fact, the Roosevelt-Astor combination not only controls completely its American lines, but is reaching out for control of foreign lines, an excellent thing for this country. We used to have foreign owners getting our lines. Now we have our citizens getting outside lines.

Karl Naunestnik, of Austria, walked across the English Channel, on "water skis." That would have been very important when Napoleon was waiting for a favorable wind to take his soldiers from France to England.

He never made that crossing and might have tried to get an army over on "water skis."

Now, with planes in the air, submarines under the waves, the Austrian school teacher's invention is interesting, but unimportant, as though some one should invent a hansom cab.

Chicago's news is this: Three theaters recently replaced members of a local motion picture union with operators from the East. Yesterday, the houses that committed this "crime against union labor" were bombed and two children were injured. There is no proof that the Chicago union had anything to do with the bombing.

If they did have anything to do with it, and if there should be proof of it, that would be bad for the Chicago union, and for other unions. Pushing racketeer-gangsters' methods to the extent of bombing theaters filled with women and children is something that Mr. Capone probably would not approve.

In New York, public schools, wisely, will probably postpone opening day because of infantile paralysis.

"When in doubt, refrain," is sound advice. But how children

4—Two girls also sought, and guard assigned to protect Margaret Blythe, South Boston girl, while police investigate a jealousy motive.

The name of the suspect in the Rodman killing, taken to police headquarters today by Inspector Joseph Condon, was withheld, pending the outcome of the grilling. Police officials said that two men

VICTIMS ARE SLAIN IN DUNGEON

Bones of Other Possible Victims Are Hunted in the "Love Nest" Murders

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 29—Andrew Moore, Harrison County jailer, announced today that Cornelius O. Pierson, 45, had confessed the murder of a woman and three children, whose bodies were found under his garage yesterday.

Moore said Pierson promised "to tell all today."

Bones of a possible fifth victim are being hunted.

"I did it. Yes, I did it! My God, let me alone for a while now!" Pierson is said to have exclaimed.

Disheveled, red-eyed and nervous the once suave correspondent of matrimonial agencies was hustled back to his cell at daybreak.

The bodies, wraped in burlap and buried in a drain sewer beneath the oddly-constructed garage six miles from here, were tentatively identified as those of Mrs. Asta Buick Eicher, well-to-do Chicago widow, and her children Harry, 12 Greta, 14, and Anabel 9.

STARVED THEM FIRST.

An autopsy revealed that the woman and children had not eaten for at least 48 hours before they were slain. The examining physician said the woman and two girls apparently died by strangulation.

The boy's skull was fractured twice. He had been struck with a hammer found buried with the bodies.

The physician who examined bones in the ruins of a cottage near where the bodies were found yesterday said today they were those of a human being. The bones were found by John Powers of North View in the ruins of a cotlage owned by the wife of Pierson.

The building was destroyed by fire last spring. It was near Pierson's garage.

The gruesome finds today indicated that Mrs. Eicher and her three children, first were hanged and later their bodies buried in the sewer.

NEAR BREAKDOWN

In the order of their importance, the clues found today were:

A human wrist and a human finger discovered in the smoke-blackened chimney.

A rope with small bits of flesh adhering.

A wire wound around a rafter in the cellar of the "murder agarge."

Police believe all victims were starved and hanged, their bodies buried and attempts made to obliterate all clues.

The basement of the garage was divided by thick brick walls into

LABRECQUE IS FOUND DEAD, GUN IN HAND

Quincy Councillor Shot Twice in Head at Home; in Mystery Move Before Death

BULLETIN

Quincy police announced late today they had found the damaged automobile of Alfred N. LaBrecque in a Hough's Neck garage, and had also located a man who said LaBrecque was in an auto accident at midnight. LaBrecque was alone and sober, witness said.

With two bullet wounds in his head and an automatic pistol in his hand, Alfred N. LaBrecque, president of Quincy City Council, and a former state representative, was found dead in his home in Quincy today.

Medical Examiner Fred Jones said that LaBrecque was a suicide.

His family was away from home at the time the body was found by a maid.

A call was sent to Quincy police headquarters for an ambulance, but when the police arrived they learned he was dead. Police Capt. Daniel Doran and three policemen remained at the home in Palmer st., and kept reporters from entering.

HIS AUTO MISSING

"There is no doubt in my mind that the wounds were self inflicted," said Medical Examiner Jones after viewing the pajama clad body of LaBrecque in his bed. "We are continuing our investigation, however."

The police continued their investigation in an effort to determine whether LaBrecque was in an auto accident during the night as had been rumored. His car could not be found. A search for it was started.

It is known that LaBrecque visited the home of friends last night and that he left for home alone. The police are endeavoring to find out where he spent several hours before returning to his home.

His body, clad only in pajamas, was found in his bed today by the maid who went to the house to perform her duties.

Police said when she saw the body the right hand clutched a .25-caliber automatic pistol and was lying across the chest.

POWDER MARK OVER EAR

According to the medical examiner there were powder marks on the right side of the head over the right ear, where the bullets entered.

LaBrecque was married twice. At the time his body was found his second wife, Nancy, and their 12-year-old daughter, Frances, were en route

SCARF-CLAD GANDHI TAKES MILKMAID, TWO GOATS

MILK, NUTS AND FRUIT DIET ON LONDON TRIP

Followers of Pessimistic Mahatma Attacked as He Boards Liner

Bombay, India, Aug. 29 (AP)—The Mahatma M. K. Gandhi, in a loin cloth and a shawl and accompanied by his two milch goats, sailed for England today to plead the cause of India's swarming millions before the bar of the King-Emperor's government.

Just before he left a dozen members of the "Red Flag Union" who were demonstrating against him, were seriously injured when they were attacked and their banners burned near the pier by Nationalist supporters.

"I see nothing on the horizon to warrant hope," said Gandhi as he stepped aboard the S.S. Rajputana for the trip.

"HOPING AGAINST HOPE"

"I was born an optimist and I am hoping against hope. My faith is in God and he seems to have made my way clear for me to go to London. Therefore I expect he will use me as his instrument for the service of humanity. For me the service of India is identical with the service of humanity."

His scarf was thrown loosely across his shoulders and a watch dangled from his waist. The goats were in charge of Miss Madeleine "Mirabai" Slade, his English disciple, who will restrict Gandhi to a diet of milk, nuts and fruit during the trip.

The Mahatma was handed his passport, describing him as a barrister. Affixing his signature, he laughed and remarked "debarred barrister."

After studying law in London, Gandhi was admitted to the bar in 1891, but was disbarred in 1922 after his caustic utterances in behalf of Indian independence.

HECKLED AT FAREWELL

Before he left his house his supporters held a giant farewell meeting. He told them from a balcony that he would try to be worthy of the enormous trust the people had reposed in him, saying:

"I am a crippled man but it is natural that a crippled nation should have a crippled delegate."

A few hecklers shouted "Shame, Gandhi, boycott the round table."

The casualties occurred when about 50 members of the radical organization marched toward the waterfront carrying banners that denounced Gandhi and the Nationalist Congress.

Nationalists, who had been trailing along, attacked the marchers tore their banners away from them, and belabored them with staves and their fists.

Mrs. Gandhi came to the pier to see her husband off. She is not going with him.

"Now, don't worry," the Mahatma called to her, "I'll be all right."

BRITAIN CUTS PAY OF 300,000 AFTER LOAN

Cabinet to Discuss $400,000,000 Credit Monday; Home Branch Expels Premier

London, Aug. 29 (AP)—Bolstered by a $400,000,000 credit from bankers of the United States and France, the national government today placed in the hands of committees its parliamentary program for restoring British finances to the right side of the ledger.

One committee was discussing the technical means to be used in balancing the budget and the other was concerned with the procedure to be used in pushing the measures through the House of Commons. Both will report to the cabinet Monday, when Prime Minister MacDonald returns from Scotland.

At the same time the government put into effect the first of a number of drastic curtailments in expenditures.

PAY CUT FOR 300,000

The salaries of 300,000 civil service employes were cut, to effect an annual saving of $4,000,000. The royal investigating commission has counseled against such reductions.

It was evident from yesterday's events that the entire Conservative party and most of the Liberals would line up in the Commons behind the government, and that the whole weight of the Laborites, with the exception of a small group of right-wingers, would form the opposition.

MacDONALD EXPELLED

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald has been expelled from the Hampstead Labor party "for joining an anti-Socialist government formed for the purpose of forcing through Parliament anti-working class legislation," it was announced today.

Mr. MacDonald has his private residence in Hampstead, a suburb of London, and has been a member of the party there for several years, holding his membership in the Labor party proper through that branch.

110 U. S. Banks Lend Britain $200,000,000 Credit

New York, Aug. 29 (INS)—A group of 110 banks, headed by J. P. Morgan & Co., joined today in extending $200,000,000 one-year credit to the new British national government. A similar amount was advanced by Paris bankers. None of the American credit will be publicly offered. The price was not revealed.

The credit, setting a new high record here for a short-term foreign government loan, was arranged to stabilize sterling exchange. It will not be used for any other purpose and will not serve to repay the existing $250,000,000 credit extended on Aug. 1.

KIDNAPED BOY HUNTED IN R. I.

Providence, R. I., Aug. 29 (AP)—Detective John P. Weris of the New York police department was here today organizing a search for Edgar F. Hazelton, Jr., 16, son of the Queens County, N. Y., district-attorney. The youth has been missing since August 20.

Weris said the boy had been traced to New Haven where a detective sergeant later recognized him from a photograph as a boy who had asked him the way to Providence. The boy was then dressed in seaman's blue dungarees as if motor boating along the shore of Long Island Sound.

Police throughout shore towns of Rhode Island began an intensive search for the youth today.

Shortly after the boy disappeared from home, his father received a communication from a band of kidnapers who said they would return the boy if $2,000 was paid them. A few days later, the ransome was raised to $25,000.

A pair of carrier pigeons, sent by the kidnapers, to which the ransom money was ordered attached, were released and trailed by a police airplane. The plans was quickly out-distanced by the birds.

Wilkins' Ship Plunges on Toward Pole; Strikes Hot and Cold Water

EXCLUSIVE

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS.

Commander of the Wilkins-Ellsworth Transarctic Submarine Expedition

Aboard Submarine Nautilus, Arctic Ocean, Aug. 29—Drawing closer to the North Pole on our tortuous voyage northward through the Arctic ice pack we today began to delve into the mystery of Arctic water temperatures—an investigation which may help to explain weather conditions along the American and North European coasts.

A series of 79 important records were secured in nine hours of continuous work under the pressure of the Nautilus' diving compartment. Three hours of further investigation in the laboratory reveal a curious anomaly.

We were working 15 feet below the surface where the water temperature is three degrees below freezing, Fahrenheit. Seventy-six feet farther down the temperature had jumped up to four and one-half degrees above freezing. Below this point the temperature gradually decreased until at 456 feet a temperature one and one-half degrees below freezing was registered.

(Note: The freezing point of water is 32 degrees above zero, Fahrenheit.)

CAPT. WILKINS

WARM WATER SANDWICH

This curious condition of warm water between two layers of cold water has a considerable bearing on conditions far beyond the Arctic. We know that the warm Gulf Stream must empty into the Arctic Ocean, but why warmer and lighter waters should sink beneath cold layers has yet to be explained. We feel that further investigation will bring new light on this strange, important problem, vitally associated as it is with weather conditions along the American and North European coasts.

We believe that could we have sampled the water and temperatures near the bottom of the Arctic Ocean at this point we would have found another warmer layer.

Among our records are the findings from bottom samples of deposits 15 inches deep at a point 2600 meters (approximately 890 feet) below the surface.

MANY TOOTHACHES

The air temperature is still two degrees below freezing and the upper portion of our metal craft is completely covered with ice. Chief Radio Operator Meyers had to climb up and scrape off the antenna before he could send this dispatch.

The general health of everyone aboard is good. We have been well fed.

Illustrating the value of careful personal precautions before venturing into the Arctic, it is interesting to note that three of the crew, Chief Engineer Shaw, Assistant Electrician Lunebeck and Jacob Flutsch, the mess boy, who were not treated by a dentist before embarking have been constantly suffering from toothache. All those whose teeth were put in first class condition have not had any trouble.

We are again proceeding north. A canopy of clouds in the east has obscured the sun so no accurate position is obtainable.

LOUISIANA BANS COTTON CROP

Baton Rouge, La., Aug. 29 (AP)—Gov. Long's plan to declare a holiday in production of cotton during 1932 today became a law that will be operative if states growing three-fourths of the cotton crop adopt similar measures.

Already adopted by the Lower House, the bill went to the Senate at 1:05 this morning. It was passed in less than ten minutes without discussion by a vote of 32 to 0.

Immediately, the bill was taken to the governor's mansion, and its sponsor awakened. Gov. Long sat up in bed in his cotton night clothes to affix his signature.

The bill provides a penalty of from $100 to $500 or from ten to sixty days in jail for violation. It prohibits both the growing and ginning of cotton next year.

SON TELLS OF MOTHER'S PLOT

Amelia Court House, Va., Aug. 29 (AP)—Robert Jones, Virginia Polytechnic Institute cadet, summoned today as a state witness, testified that his mother, Mrs. Jesston Allen Jones, on trial for murder, not only told him she planned to hire a negro to kill his father, but that she also urged him to commit the crime.

Speaking with emotion, Robert said his mother told him at Christmas that she planned to get Richard Lee, a negro farm hand, to kill his father, J. Will Jones. Jones was found shot to death the morning of January 9. Lee is now serving a 20-year sentence for the crime.

Robert's voice almost failed several times as he testified. Mrs. Jones kept her eyes on her son as he occupied the stand.

Savant to Determine if World Is "Running Down"

Chicago, Aug. 29 (AP)—Prof. Arthur H. Compton of the University of Chicago, winner of a Nobel prize in 1927 for his researches in physics, was en route with a party of scientists today to Mt. Evans, Colo., to study cosmic rays.

Prof. Compton

Before his departure Prof. Evans said one of the most important questions to be determined eventually regarding the rays was whether they are created by the disintegration of atoms, as most other types of rays are, or whether they result from the building up of simple elements into more complex atoms. He said if the latter proved to be true it would upset the theory that the universe is "running down."

G. O. P. Hails Jobless Issue, West Declares

Sedalia, Mo., Aug. 29—The tariff and the depression will be "welcomed" by the Republican party as issues in the 1932 elections, James L. West, publicity director of the Republican National Committee, has informed the Missouri Republican Editorial Association of Missouri here.

James West

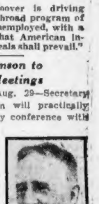
Delivering what was obviously an address authorized by the party leaders, West said:

"We will welcome as issues those subjects on which the Democratic high command has been directing its fire—the tariff and the depression.

"President Hoover is driving forward with a broad program of relief for the unemployed, with a determination that American institutions and ideals shall prevail."

Secretary Stimson to Drop Press Meetings

Washington, Aug. 29—Secretary of State Stimson will practically abandon his daily conferences with the press when he returns to Washington, it learned at the State Department. It was said that he has never relished press conferences that they made him "nervous" and took up too much time, as well as inaccurate information which he did not want published at the time.



Sec. Stimson

Upon his return from Europe next week, it was stated, he will delegate his relations with the press to Under Secretary William R. Castle, except when he has some highly important announcement to make.

The secretary and his wife sailed for home aboard the Leviathan yesterday.

get infantile paralysis, nobody knows exactly. Fortunately, it is proved that a serum, made from the blood of patients that have recovered, and the patients may be monkeys, will save children's lives.

Dealing with such a mysterious disease, you are reminded of Upton Sinclair's anecdote about the man down South, determined not to get yellow fever. He stood outside the store until everybody had left it, then crept in to do his purchasing. Some one was outside a mosquito bit him, and gave him yellow fever.

TWO BOYS RAID CITY HOSPITAL AND 'KIDNAP' INJURED PAL

FIGHT DOCTORS IN 'RESCUE' OF YOUTH

Stabbed Patient Taken From Stretcher to Waiting Car; Is Later Captured

Two youths battled doctors at City Hospital early today and escaped with a "rescued" patient after causing a furore in the accident room.

The patient was booked as Joseph Curry, 25, single, of West Ninth st., South Boston, when he was taken to the hospital in the ambulance of the City Point station.

Police announced later than an investigation he was found to be Joseph Cumphrey. The address he gave was correct.

SEIZED ON STRETCHER

Patrolman James Mahoney and Michael Clasby had left the hospital when two youths entered and inquired of Dr. Linwood Merrill

"Is this a police case?" one of the youths asked after permission to see Cumphrey was refused.

Dr. Merrill replied that it was, whereupon the two youths rushed into the accident room, seized Cumphrey from a stretcher and carried him to a waiting automobile.

A third youth sat at the wheel of the car with motor running.

Dr. Merrill and Dr. Jacob Eddy struggled with the youths as they led Cumphrey away, but the two managed to escape with their quarry.

While doctors were telephoning for the police, the two returned to the accident room, struggled again with Dr. Eddy and an orderly and escaped with the clothing of Cumphrey that had been removed on his entrance.

Cumphrey, clad in a hospital night-gown and suffering from cuts as the result of a brawl on Champney st., South Boston, stayed in the waiting automobile with the driver, apparently eager for his release from the hospital, doctors said.

PATIENT RECAPTURED

Ten minutes after the hospital battle, Motorcycle Officer Joseph Gasper of the City Point station, sighted the automobile at Old Colony ave. and Dorchester st., South Boston.

He halted the machine and two of the youths ran into a side street leaving Cumphrey, still clad in the hospital gown, and the driver.

The driver was booked as Lawrence McCabe of 79 Gates st., South Boston. He was charged with rescuing a prisoner, and Cumphrey was booked for drunkenness.

Meanwhile, police searched the Old Colony ave. district for the escaped youths, both of whom will be charged with assault, police said.

Cumphrey was under arrest for alleged drunkenness when he was taken to the hospital, police said, but no officer was left to guard him in view of the hospital rule in taking the clothing of a patient.

Cumphrey was not taken back to the hospital but was taken to Station 12, City Point, and later released when it was found he had no police record.

NEW KILLING IN N. Y. GANG WAR

New York, Aug. 29 (AP)—After a day of calm, police were faced with another gangster killing today when a policeman stumbled over the body of a man in Brooklyn identified as Leonardo De Mico, 30, of Brooklyn.

A single bullet hole through the left eye had taken his life in Skillman st., only a short distance from the clubroom where three men were killed a week ago.

About the same time 15 detectives and several squads of police surrounded a apartment house on Bushwick ave. in Brooklyn and captured seven men, five pistols and a quantity of ammunition.

A group of 99 persons was in the lineup today, the fifth day of the police campaign against crime. Two men wa found to have pistols.

POLICE GUARD IRISH TOWN

Newry, Ulstern Ireland, Aug. 29 (AP)—The assembling of 20,000 members of the Royal Black Institution, a wing of the Orangemen, caused authorities today to take extraordinary precautions to forestall possible outbreaks in and around this latter border town.

A special radio was installed in police headquarters so that communication could be established with military barracks.

DUCE IS NEAR DEATH IN AIR

London, Aug. 29 (INS)—Premier Mussolini had two narrow escapes from death or serious injury when the plane in which he was returning to Rome from Spezia was forced down twice at the mouth of the River Ombrone near Ostia, according to Central News dispatch from Rome.

Mussolini was accompanied on the flight by Gen. Italo Balbo, Italian air minister.

The premier and Gen. Balbo had been at Spezia for several days witnessing the army aerial maneuvers, in which virtually the entire Italian air force took part.

As they sailed Ostia their plane encountered a terrific storm. The plane, according to the Central News, was badly buffeted and twice the pilot was forced to descend.

QUINN SHOWS SLIGHT GAIN

Following nearly 10 hours' sleep last night and a light breakfast this morning, hope for the recovery of former Mayor Edward W. Quinn of Cambridge increased today. His sleep was unbroken from 9.15 p. m. last night until 7 a. m. today.

Among those who visited him yesterday were Cardinal O'Connell and Mayor Curley. The former Cambridge mayor's condition was so critical Thursday that he was given the last rites of the Catholic church. He has suffered from heart ailment since last spring.

GIRL OFFERS TO TRADE BLOOD

If Boston health department officials are willing to remove the tonsils of a girl, a former paralysis patient, who has no further use for them, they may have the blood she loses during the operation for use in infantile paralysis cures.

Dr. Fred Bailey, deputy health commissioner, received a letter today from the Boston girl, now in Connecticut, containing this proposition.

She wrote she is 23 years old and had infantile paralysis when two years of age. She said she needs a tonsil operation, and if the city will remove her tonsils it may have the blood for serum. Dr. Bailey said such blood would be valueless and he would ignore the letter, which he regarded as one of the most unusual he ever received.

PROSPERITY IN BOND PLAN SEEN

New York, Aug. 29—Acclaiming the $5,000,000,000 prosperity bond loan proposed by William Randolph Hearst, Director Edward C. Rybicki, of the Department of Public Welfare Free Employment Bureau, last night proposed that it be made effective at once through a special session of Congress.

Director Rybicki pleaded, in a radio address over WOR, for action "instead of commissions" at Washington.

He said the huge prosperity bond loan, if floated in time, would dissipate the "fear complex" that grips the nation. At the same time he denounced a corporation, which he described as "one of the largest public utility companies in the world," for refusal to cooperate in the municipal "give a job" campaign.

PLANE HUNT LED BY PASSENGER

Gloucester, Aug. 29—Location of the amphibion plane which crashed off Bakers Island Thursday with the loss of one life, was expected today when one of the surviving passengers volunteered to lead coast guardsmen to the spot.

Irvin Dauphines of East Main st., Gloucester, the passenger, declared he was "very certain" he could point out the exact spot where the air liner sank. He was promptly taken aboard a coast guard cutter, with officials of Pan-American Airways, owners of thep lane, and the trip to the scene of the crash started.

Dauphines told newspapermen that the rubber life raft to which the 12 survivors of the crash clung for two hours before being rescued, drifted only a short distance. He stated that he marked the location of the sunken plane by means of a buoy off Bakers' Island.

The judge reserved decision.

WITNESS TELLS OF BANK HOLDUP

Answering the appeal broadcast by District Attorney Warren L. Bishop of Middlesex County an eyewitness of the $25,000 holdup of George M. Harrigan, Lowell bank president, at Woburn Thursday, told his story to State Detective O'Neill at Cambridge courthouse today.

Meanwhile, State Detective Sherlock was combing the woods in the Silver Lake district of Wilmington for the car used by the bandits. A mysterious telephone call to the district attorney's office sent Sherlock on the quest.

The name of the man questioned today was withheld by authorities. He told police how he saw two men with guns in their hands taking a bag from the automobile of Harrigan, who is head of the Lowell Trust Company.

The witness appeared at the district attorney's office following an appeal to the press to locate occupants of five machines believed to have witnessed the daring daylight robbery.

CARMEN BACKED ON SAFETY

Massachusetts stands squarely behind the efforts of street railway companies in their campaign for greater safety, Attorney-General Joseph E. Warner told delegates to the annual convention of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Employes of America, today, at the Hotel Bradford.

Warner, representing Gov. Ely, was introduced to the final meeting of the convention by William D. Mahon, president of the Detroit Local Union, who presided.

"I realize the difficulties under which a street railway is operated," Warner said, "and I wish to make it clear that the Governor and the State Legislature are behind every move toward greater safety."

The convention will close tonight with a banquet in the ballroom, at which John C. Carey, president of the Boston Local Union, will preside.

$40,000 BLAZE RAZES MANSION

Fire of mysterious origin early today destroyed a mansion under construction on "Holm Lea," Brookline, the former estate of the late Prof. Charles S. Sargent of Harvard.

Flames rose 50 feet in the air and attracted motorists for miles around.

The mansion, nearly completed, was situated on Codman rd., atop of a hill and the blaze was difficult to combat.

When the first firemen arrived the roof had caved in and a wall had collapsed, sending showers of sparks skyward.

Fire Chief Selden R. Allen ordered a third alarm sounded immediately, skipping the second and calling all the town apparatus to the scene.

The mansion was being built by J. Cascoigne & Co., Boston contractors.

Chief Allen set the damage at $25,000 but later raised it to 40,000.

'FLAME' RAPS JUDGE; HELD IN BIG BAIL

Central Falls, R. I., Aug. 29 (INS)—Singing Communistic songs and shouting at the top of their voices, three women, confined in a small room adjoining the district court, today kept annoying Judge Roscoe Dexter, who was conducting the arraignment of 11 persons arrested during a textile disturbance yesterday outside the General Fabrics Corporation.

The three women were Anne Burlak, so-called "Red Flame" of the strikers here, and alleged Communistic organizer; Miss Annie Niewiera, 17, and Mrs. Stella Goicz, 45, the latter two striking operatives of the mill.

When Miss Burlak was brought before Judge Dexter, she kept arguing with him when he fixed bail at $10,000 for trial on Sept. 11, on a charge of disorderly conduct.

GETS COURT THREAT

She protested that such bail was too high, that it was against the Constitution of the United States, and that it was bail ordinarily used in murder cases.

"Keep quiet," Judge Dexter said, "or I'll have to fine you in contempt of court."

Judge Dexter explained that Miss Burlak had violated the bail bond on which she was at liberty following her arraignment last June on a charge of attacking a woman.

"You seem to have a contempt for all laws," Judge Dexter commented.

The "red flame," unabashed, informed the judge that her friends would appeal to the Superior Court on Monday for a lowering of the bail.

10 OTHERS HELD

When Miss Niewiera appeared before Judge Dexter she admitted she had participated in the disturbance in the waiting room.

Her bail was set at $2500 for trial on Sept. 11 on a charge of obstructing an officer in the performance of his duty.

Mrs. Goicz was held in $1000 bail on a charge of assaulting an officer.

Seven men and a 14-year-old boy were held in $500 on a charge of rioting. Additional bail of $1000 was also imposed upon three of the men on a charge of throwing stones.

Today, the situation outside the mill was quiet. Police kept people moving in the streets and forbade any loitering.

THREE BABIES FIGHT DEATH

Three babies, stricken with infantile paralysis, are fighting for life today in respirators in the Children's Hospital in Longwood ave.

The new cases reported were as follows: Greenfield, 5; Chicopee, 4; Boston, 3; Northampton, 3; Springfield, 2; and one each from Chatham, Chelmsford, Everett, Gardner, Great Barrington, Holyoke, Middleboro, Montague, New Bedford and Norwood.

Today's total equals that of yesterday, the largest number reported on any one day.

The third death from infantile paralysis this season in Brockton came when Doris Langelier, 20-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Langelier of 725 Summer st., passed away.

Here's Where Blonde Saw Her Racketeering Friend Shot to Death

"SPOT" THAT GANGDOM'S CALL PUT "BIG JACK" RODMAN ON

Gang rivals picked a quiet setting when they put "Big Jack" Rodman, South End racketeer, on the spot. It was in front of this large apartment house at 149 Audubon rd., Back Bay, that Rodman fell, mortally wounded from a fusilade of shots fired from a passing car. Marion Blythe, 25, attractive South Boston blonde, told police she was seated in Rodman's auto, across the street, when he was slain as he started to enter the apartment house. (Staff photo.)

'BLUEBEARD' CONFESSES TO KILLING 4

four chambers. There was a gas jet in each of these. Police expressed the belief the victims might also have been gassed, although there were marks on all the bodies.

Startling developments tumbled over each other today as Pierson slept deeply in the county jail after confessing that he had slain the wealthy widow and the children.

The latest dramatic development "broke" when police opened a packet of four letters which Pierson had hoc. about to mail when he was arrested. These letters made ardent love to women in various localities, and in one he promised to visit the recipient on Monday next.

While the letters were being opened, another detail of police rushed to a second garage, which Pierson had rented in Clarkburg, where a treasure-trove of clues was unearthed.

These included several pairs of women's and children's shoes, burned letters, a wrist watch bearing the initials "D. P. L." and a wedding ring inscribed "C. O. R. to D. L." Powers' alias is Cornelius O. Pierson.

SENDS LOVE AND KISSES.

The letters opened today were addressed to Miss Madge Gilliikue, 129 Broad st., New Bern, N. C.; Mrs. Bessie Storrs, 116 North Clinton st., Olean, N. Y.; Miss Edith D. Simpson, 623 Field ave., Detroit, and Miss Virginia D. Bell, 34 Winter st., Hagerstown, Md.

Idealistic in tone, the letter to Mrs. Simpson assured her that her "sewer letter" had been received. Pierson pictured himself as literally "the answer to a maiden's prayer." He deplored the fact that old men often boasted of drinking in their youth, and said that he neither drank nor smoked.

He wrote feelingly of the "dear and intimate relationship" that had existed between his own mother and father and expressed the hope that Mrs. Simpson would be able to answer "real soon." He closed with "love and kisses."

In his note to Mrs. Storrs, he stated his intention of leaving here Sunday for Olean.

"Honey," he wrote, "I can't wait. I shall be happy when I can hold you close and we can begin our lives together."

The letter to Miss Gilliikue, evidently the first he had written her, was of the "form-letter" variety although it breathed eloquently of affectionate phrases.

GRILLED 12 HOURS

It enclosed a photograph, represented to be that of the writer.

For 12 hours Pierson had stoutly maintained he knew nothing of the death of the woman and children.

Though complaining of drowsiness and a pain in his right side, Pierson parried with police of Clarksburg and Charleston, and detectives from Chicago.

Toward daybreak, however, detectives said Pierson showed signs of nervous collapse.

Under heavy police guard, Pierson was taken to a mortuary late last night, where he calmly viewed the bodies.

"I feel that awful," was his only comment.

Returned to the jail, Pierson grew nervous, his eyes were bloodshot and swollen and he complained of pains in his right side.

Mrs. Leella Powers, the prisoner's wife, and her sister, Belle Strother, were questioned in the county jail.

BODIES IN SEWER

Police, informed by a boy that he had helped Pierson make a tunnel underneath the so-called garage, began digging in the cellar.

In the slime and mud of the sewer they came upon the body of the woman. Within an hour they had unearthed the bodies of the children, buried close together.

Earlier in the day, the garage, which never had been used as such, was searched. Bloodstains and what was said to be human hair were found. Trunks containing clothing of the woman and children also were discovered.

Pierson was taken to the garage, but, though his stories conflicted, police said, he maintained he knew nothing of the whereabouts of the missing family.

PLOT TO GET MONEY

When informed the bodies had been found, Pierson merely shrugged his shoulders and told Chief of Police C. O. Duckworth that he hadn't "a thing to say."

Crowds gathering about the city jail when news of the finding of the bodies was circulated, prompted officers to remove Pierson to the county jail.

Pierson, also known as Harry S. Powers, was arrested Thursday at the request of Paris Ridge, Ill., police. He admitted he knew Mrs. Eicher and that he was a frequent visitor "on pleasure trips" to Chicago. He said he last saw the widow as she boarded a train for Denver, Col., some weeks ago. At that time, he said, she was accompanied by a man named Rogers.

While he insisted his only business dealings with Mrs. Eicher were when he sold her home for her, police said he later admitted having given one of the children, Greta, a note to her mother's bank in Chicago, requesting the balance of Mrs. Eicher's account.

With it, he said, he sent a blank check purporting to have been signed by Mrs. Eicher. The bank, however, refused the request.

Explaining his correspondence with women throughout the country through matrimonial agencies, Pierson was quoted as saying he wrote the women "just for fun." Many such letters were found in his possession, police said.

'Rescued' Patient

Joseph Cumphrey of South Boston was taken to the City Hospital by police today after a brawl, but two of his friends didn't like the idea. So they invaded the hospital, battled doctors, and took Cumphrey from a stretcher to a waiting auto. He was recaptured, but later released at Station 12. (Staff photo.)

"Bluebeard" Suspect Had Form Letters for Victims

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 29 (AP)—Harry F. Powers, alias Cornelius O. Pierson, 46-year-old operator of a one-man matrimonial agency who is held here for the murder of Mrs. Asta Rose Eicher and her three children of Park Ridge, Ill., prepared hand-written form letters to reply to love lorn women who answered his advertisements.

A score of the letters were found by police.

"My age is ——. Height 67 inches. Have clear blue eyes, medium dark hair and weight 175 pounds.

"As chief engineer I have an income of $400 per month. But in addition I have a much larger income from oil and gas royalties, the details of which I will give you later. My wife can have anything that money can buy, but above all, I expect to give her that true love and devotion which every one of us craves so much.

LONELY FOR MATE

"Death has taken my previous wife from me, leaving me quite alone and very lonely. I am longing for some one to take her place. Some one to fill that empty space in my heart.

"Women are the sweetest, purest and most unselfish part of the human race. They sing the melody of human life. Any man who has experienced a mother's devotion, a wife's self-sacrificing love, or a sweetheart's affection, knows that this is true.

"So, I am trying in this manner, to find the one, the only one, that can make home a paradise, a place of rest, a haven of content where loved ones await and to whom I can look forward with pleasure and anticipation. Who knows but what you may be that one?

WILL NOT REGRET

"Won't you write to me? Please do. Any questions that you care to ask of me will be answered to the best of my ability and anything that you care to tell me will be considered as strictly confidential.

"I have a small photo of myself. May I send it? And yours will be greatly appreciated. Do send it.

"Again, please write. You shall never have any cause for regret. Use the enclosed envelope and tell me lots about yourself. Please do.

"Anxiously awaiting yours, I am most sincerely——" are definitely listed as the probable executioners of Rodman.

A second man sought also is a North End resident, while Condon and Inspector William McGuire have orders to ascertain the whereabouts of a certain prominent figure in sport circles and bring him in for questioning.

TWO GIRLS SOUGHT

With Margaret Blythe, attractive blonde, having come forward to volunteer information that she was at Nantasket with Rodman on the night he was slain, then accompanying him to Audubon rd., where he was waylaid and shot, police seek another blonde and a third girl.

Neighbors of Rodman living on Walnut ave., Roxbury, said today that they saw him and a striking blonde entering the apartment Thursday evening, a few hours before the shooting occurred.

They will be questioned further about her appearance and every effort will be made to identify her.

The third girl, for whom hunt was begun by Inspector Benjamin Goodman and John Holmes in the South End today, is said to have been a narcotics customer of Rodman and familiar with ramifications of his illicit dealings which heretofore had not come to light.

Rodman's widow, who had been spending the summer at Nahant, was in seclusion today in care of her brother, who is a physician, while the dead man's parents were en route from Philadelphia for the funeral.

"Jack got into the rackets and couldn't get out, but he told me he was going to make one more big haul and then quit," said Jacob Feldman of Chambers st., West End, father of Mrs. Rodman.

"He said we'd all move out of Boston and settle down together. He was going to go back into the wallpaper business."

Friends of Mrs. Rodman confirmed this story and said that the widow was unconvinced that her husband had any affairs with other women.

Gary's Grouch Lands Him Lead in English Film Production

Los Angeles, Aug. 29—Hollywood's Gary Cooper is a great social success in New York. Gary is seen everywhere and he has really overcome some of his shyness. He was equally popular in London, so much so that Paramount is sending him back to make a picture. I have a hunch this chance to play the lead in "The Light That Failed" in London was given him because of Gary's dissatisfaction over his role in "Sal o' Singapore."

He hates the part he plays in this picture, at least, that is what he has told several friends to whom he telephoned. But he loves New York. Maybe because he is such a social light—and then there is Kathryn Wilson to whom he is devoted. Gary is a one woman man and from all I hear he has now transferred his entire affections to the stage actress who made a hit in "The Vinegar Tree" and in other recent plays.

She Means Business

Color such as has never been seen on any screen is promised by Darryl Zanuck in Winnie Lightner's next picture, "She Means Business." Darryl was a little cold on the color proposition until Technicolor demonstrated its new process which, he says, is the last word in correctness of tones. We will be waiting to see how Winnie's red hair photographs and if the color is all the Warner Brothers' executive claims. Lloyd Bacon will direct, and in case you don't know, "She Means Business" is a Samuel Shipman play being put to proper motion picture shape by Houston Branch and Robert Lord. The color mentioned is a recent invention of Technicolor and never before used in a feature picture.

Ha has his own plane and pilot and claims that the upper ether is the only place where he can escape parents with budding gangsters in tow. Hal departed in his plane for New York six days ago—on business, he said, but I have a hunch that is just an alibi and he's really remaining away from work.

Lowe's Big Work

I don't know just what "Transatlantic" did for Edmund Lowe but it should be "The Big Parade" in his life. He was so good that several people I know went back to see the picture a second time. Eddie is at his best in these polished crook roles. He gets himself liked where he should be disliked and usually steals all the sympathy in the picture. His next is "Cheating" and I imagine it's another crook yarn. Helen Kenneth MacKenna, a recruit from the stage and this by the way, is Kay Francis' bridegroom's first solo directing picture. Linda Watkins is his leading lady and Claire Maynard also in a part. Let me tell you about Miss Maynard. She plans to go had any stage or screen experience. She was formerly a Fifth ave. and magazine cover model and she is said to have the necessary poise and, of course, the good looks.

Traveling through Hollywood we hear that Eddie Cantor returns to New York Monday, but not for a show. Eddie has been won over to the movies. Unless he changes his mind when he talks to Flo Ziegfeld he is not going to do the "Follies" this year. He is coming right back to make another picture. Donald Freeman, editor of Vanity Fair, is on his annual visit to Hollywood. Evelyn Brent was the first girl he interviewed. She met him at the airport and they dined together. S. W. Van Dyke has been chosen to direct "Tarzan of the Apes" by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. He ought to be just the lad who could do "Tarzan" for his "Trader Horn" has been a box office smash. I always think of Harry Reichenbach and the gag he pulled. There will never be another press agent with his spectacular methods. Poor Harry gave so much of himself to his job that he didn't live his full span of life.

Just in case you haven't heard, Anderson Lawlor, backgammon champion of Malibu Beach, is at the Paramount studios. Anderson is playing the husband of Kay Francis in "Girls About Town." Sounds like a good cast with Anderson, Kay Francis, Lilyan Tashman and Lucile Gleason as the mother. Joe E. Brown has been breaking a few records with his public appearances. 6 DEAD, OVER 20 HURT BY AUTOS IN BAY STATE

Six persons were dead today and more than a score are in hospitals, some seriously injured, as a result of a series of automobile crashes caused by rain and slippery road conditions.

Among those killed is Joseph McGonagle of Mystic ave., Everett Twilight League baseball player and brother of the president of the Everett City Council. McGonagle died in St. John's hospital, Lowell, from injuries received in a crash in Billerica today.

The dead are:

Waskiewicz, Chester, 18, of 4 Dorchester st., Worcester; killed in Auburn.

Young, Mrs. Josephine, Benjamin st., Winchendon; died in North Adams Hospital.

King, Mrs. Evelyn, Winchendon, daughter of Mrs. Young; died in North Adams Hospital.

Bessey, Mrs. Persis L., 50, Columbus, O.; killed in Florence.

Bessey, John, 9, son of Mrs. Persis Bessey.

Joseph Noll of Cambridge, companion of McGonigal, suffered a fractured skull. Two other passengers in McGonigal's car, Albert McAuliffe and James Sullivan, both of Somerville, were less seriously hurt. All three are in Lowell General hospital.

The McGonagle auto crashed into the machine of Rev. Edward Reed, curate of St. Peter's church, Lowell. The last rites of the Catholic church were administered by Fr. Reed to McGonagle by the roadside.

Mrs. Bessey and her son were instantly killed when their auto collided with a truck in Florence. Five other members of the family were injured.

Mrs. Young and her daughter were killed when their fast moving car smashed into the side through a fence on the Baldwinville highway near Gardner, overturned twice and catapulted the occupants to the road. Two other persons were injured in this accident.

Police believe a hit-and-run truck was responsible for the accident in Auburn in which Waskiewicz was instantly killed. Edward Jaworski, 18, of Vernon tr., Worcester, the other occupant of the car, was seriously injured.

LINDY STUDIES SIBERIAN ROUTE FOR HOP HOME

Tokio, Aug. 29 (AP)—Col Charles A. Lindbergh, during a visit to the embassy of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics today, told officials that he and his wife had not determined which route they could take home, but both were greatly interested in Siberia.

The call at the Soviet embassy was made to express the fliers' appreciation of the courtesy extended them in Russia at Khabarovsk and Novaya Mariya during their flight from the United States to Tokio.

Col. Lindbergh explained the reasons that he and his wife had for some time been casting longing eyes toward Moscow as the destination of a sightseeing trip. He said, however, that the trip over Siberia might require more than they planned to spend on the flight.

Lindbergh made it clear that he and his wife had no definite plans beyond a flight to China.

Newly-Made Admiral Acting for Adams

Washington, Aug. 29 (AP)—A naval officer who was only a captain three months ago now serves as Secretary of the Navy.

With Secretary Adams, his assistants and the chiefs of the bureaus of naval operations and navigation out of the city today, the duties of Rear-Admiral Ralph B. Larimer, who attained that rank on June 1 when he became chief of the bureau of navigation, were limited to a routine character.

Germany-U. S. Flier Over Quebec Wilds

Ottawa, Aug. 29 (AP)—Capt. Wolfgang von Grotau, German seaplane flier, apparently was somewhere in the northern wilds of Quebec today en route from Germany to the United States by way of Greenland.

Radio messages received by the government station at Resolution, Hudson Straits, north of Labrador, indicated he arrived unexpectedly over the American continent yesterday from Godhayn, Greenland.

THE LOVES OF CHARLIE CHAPLIN

King of Laughs and World's Unluckiest Lover

(Copyright, 1931, by the Boston Evening American)

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Charlie courted Josephine Dunn, but it was a courtship that never led to the altar—just another passing romance that filled his hours and made life pleasurable for him.

CHAPTER 24

Hollywood claimed Josephine Dunn, a dazzling blonde, born and educated in Lawrence, Mass., as the next Mrs. Chaplin.

But it was only a rumor. Both Josephine and Charlie vigorously denied the allegation, but irrespective of their denials and refutations, the film colony persisted in its belief that another blonde was on the right road to the innermost recesses of the comic's heart.

It was said that Chaplin, in no wit dismayed by his two previous marital failures, was looking for another spouse, actually wanted a Mrs. Charles Chaplin, No. 3. Charlie said: "Quite."

But Charlie had said "No" so many times before that his word was not believed.

Josephine was much of a mystery in Hollywood. She had won a beauty contest in her home town and as afterwards selected as one of the Paramount School students, in a contest conducted by a Boston theater.

SCORED ON STAGE

She hadn't appeared much on the screen, although she had scored a distinct hit on the stage. Her beauty graced the casts of the musical comedy, "Good Morning, Dearie," "Sleeping Stones" and "Kid Boots."

Josephine, like those who preceded her, was seen frequently motoring with Charlie and dining with him at the smart places. It was thought that Chaplin was not only considering the young woman as his possible wife, but also in the role of leading lady for his films.

However, Miss Dunn never graced Charlie's films in any role. She was a former "Follies" damsel, which was sufficiency itself in captivating Charlie's heart.

CHAPLIN GIFTS

Josephine had in 1925 married William F. Cameron, a Boston contracting engineer at Elkton, Md. She was in the stage, in the screen version of "Kid Boots" at the time and had succumbed to the attentive solicitude of the engineer. But it was a short-lived marriage for three years later they were divorced.

She flitted here and there, finally taking rest on the arm of Charlie. And so the comic courted Miss Dunn in his most Chaplin manner, expressing his fondness and admiration for her in flowers, gifts, those niceties that reveal the gallantries of men and the susceptibility of women.

But it wasn't Charlie, the real Charlie, that Josephine desired. She was flattered by the film king's attention. She was delighted to be seen with the "great Chaplin." It thrilled her to be known as one of the "Chaplin women."

And allured by the glamor of friendship and romance with Charlie, Josephine beamed and "yessed" Charlie in everything.

But then, Josephine was accepting the graces and attentions of other ardent swains and suitors. She didn't confine her fondness for Charlie to Charlie alone.

It wasn't to be. It was a happy fling while it lasted but it left Charlie with nothing.

Only last January, Josephine announced that she was going to try her luck at matrimony again. But not with Charlie. This time the man in the case was an oil company official and the son of a prominent and wealthy oil operator, Clyde Greathouse of Los Angeles. They were married that week.

Was Charlie disappointed? Only so and so.

Charlie has not many friends, but the few he prides himself are intensive in their friendship with him.

DIDN'T MISS HER

So back he went to them. He is friendly with Marion Davies, Kathryn Carver, Adolphe Menjou, Harry Crocker, Harry D. Arnast, the Fairbanks. He went about with them a bit. Then, too, he always enjoys the company of his business associate of 16 years standing, Carlyle Robinson, his personal representative.

So he didn't miss Josephine very much.

But Charlie learned that Josephine, his momentary passion, had suffered another disillusion—her second marriage had gone on the rocks.

Charlie learned that Greathouse had instituted divorce proceedings against his blonde and beautiful wife. He learned that Josephine counter-suited with a charge of cruelty.

Last June, Greathouse was ordered to pay his wife temporary alimony of $75 weekly pending the hearing of the suit.

But by that time Charlie was on his way to Europe to enjoy a respite he so needed and deserved.

He had given to the world an astounding silent drama, "City Lights." He was again across the big pond to reap the rewards quietly, enjoyably and happily.

With him went his personal representative, Carlyle Robinson, and two other business associates.

Charlie's first stop was in London.

British society accepted the king pin of the silents. There was rumor of a title to be placed on the eminent Charlie Chaplin by the king.

But Charlie was more concerned about a dancing partner than about a title.

She was a stunning person.

(Charlie's trip abroad and the woman he met and romanced with will be told in Monday's paper.)

THE RADIO SCRAP BOOK

Air Occasions Many Will Recall

By N. F. T.

Standing silently over in the corner is our newspaper studio scrap book. It is an imposing volume, measuring 18x24 inches. Within the heavy covers are pasted (quite neatly) clippings with an uncanny power to bring back fond recollection upon perusal. In fact, one almost regards it as a dream book or even a history of radio during the past two years in Boston, as your favorite newspaper has helped to make it.

An hour alone with that monumental book is stimulating. One's pulse beats slightly faster while reviewing the thrilling contents.

ALL BOSTON TURNED OUT

Who recalls the reception to Admiral Byrd and his colors in Faneuil Station and the Parkman band stand on June 28, 1930? That was New England's first point to point hook up.

Remember the great Tercentenary parade broadcast? Mayor Curley entertained Lord Mayor Bilton of Boston, England, and Mr. William Randolph Hearst as honor guests of Boston, September 19, 1930 was the date.

Next came the glorious American Legion Parade program, lasting seven hours through WLEX, now WAAB. Five governors were on the air that 4th day of October, 1930. Listeners heard Gov. Allen of Mass., Gov. Tobey of New Hampshire, Gov. Weeks of Vermont, Governor Case of Rhode Island and Gov. Roosevelt of New York. What a day!

PROMINENT PERSONAGES

Since then there have been many national figures in the new newspaper microphone. Foremost among them appears the names of Capt. Frank Hawks, Gen. Smedley D. Butler, Sir Hubert Wilkins and Lowell Thomas.

Famed personalities of the theater are also recorded in this, our cherished record of the past. Those familiar names head the list; Helen Morgan, Joe Cook, Helen Kane, William A. Brady, Lee Morse, Gus Van, The Brox Sisters, Rosetta Duncan (of The Duncan Sisters) Earl Carroll, Will Mahoney, Georgie Price, Clyde Cook, Sam Bernard, Ken Murray and many more of lesser fame, but unquestioned talent. Least, but not least in importance was the very recent featuring of Edward ("Little Caesar") Robinson.

Nor was the sporting gentry overlooked by ever alert "mike." Here is our index. If it could only speak you would be told how Jack Sharkey, Babe Ruth, Walter Johnson and a score of other top notch athletes took their turn before the sensitive mechanism of our "mike."

But those days are gone. It's one grand and glorious feeling to recount each and every incident attending the radio presentation of such events and people. Forgive your Uncle N. F. T. for his peep into the archives of the past, please. Much happens in a year.

Man About Town

By AL DUFFY

WHO'S LOONY NOW

What's the matter with this guy, Fitzgibbon, I wonder? . . . First he creates me with saying things here that I have never said and then he says I'm wrong and dubs me "Wrong Man About Town." BEACON HILL

—by—

AFTER SPENDING ONE'S LIFE ENDEAVORING TO corral a private yacht, nine motors and a couple of planes, wouldn't certain members of society form a "walker's club" just to be different.

MRS. PARKER

"IS IT A HIKER'S CLUB?" WE queried innocently, not being able really to visualize Mabel Bremer (Mrs. S. Parker) or Mrs. T. Handasyd Cabot Alping, and the sniffy answer we got: "Hiking? Certainly not!" This so exclusive club is just a group of the JUST SO girls—well, if not girls they were once and for aught we know may be again—who are taking to strolling instead of rolling along the country-side in their Rolls-Royces or Renaults.

FROM TEA-TABLE TO TEA-TABLE they totter, we give you our word, and the social climbers are now tumbling out of their limousines to join the holy strollers. All this is happening up in Dublin, N. H., and we are going to sell our General Motors at once and invest in Parasols, preferred, if this form of sport gets popular. Among the walkers are Mrs. Jaspar Whiting, Mrs. Harold Mason, Mrs. Pompelli. Mrs. J. Lindon Smith and other Dublinites who don't care a snap-dragon what they do.

Old Maine Home in New Setting

EVERYONE IS CONGRATULATING THE IRVIN GARFIELDS on stepping out of the old family (Emmons) homestead and taking unto themselves a new home—at least, it is new to them although it is one of the oldest houses in Maine tucked over the road down Falmouthway. It is fascinating. Eleanor, Jane and Brother, Junior, are devoted to this summer town.

THE WINTHROP AMES ARE spending August at North Easton. Mrs. Ames was Mrs. Phil Cabot a few years ago. Did a woman ever have two husbands so temperamentally different? Phillip has been very active in church affairs lately and of course everyone knows that the stage is the absorbing interest in Winthrop's life. The "Beggar on Horseback" made a name for him. The Ames have a charming house on Beekman Place, N. Y., where they stay when they are in that city but one can never tell exactly where to find them, they dash off to Europe, or Hollywood so frequently. It must be exciting to be a playwright and producer.

Rochesters in Maine

MRS. BILLY PARKER—Elsie Ames—has been spending August at Pride's Crossing with her mother, Mrs. Oliver Ames, of 9 Commonwealth ave. She will return to North Easton for the fall. Their winter home is at 71 Beacon st.

MRS. EDWARD ROCHESTER and her sons have been visiting her mother, Mrs. J. M. Baldridge, of Commonwealth ave., at her summer estate near Rockland, Me. Mrs. Rochester is the sister of Mr. Dudley Wolfe. The Rochesters have a lovely place at Arlington, Vt., "West Mount Farm," near Lake Champlain which is near Westport, N. Y., where the Philip Stocktons have a beautiful home. The Stocktons sequester themselves here in their lovely villa during the early summer until they go to Manchester-by-the-Sea. We are wondering if Philip is still using his "Gillette"—he is president of the First National Bank of Boston you know—or has he switched to an "old-fashioned."

Visiting at Eastham

MISS SHAW

AND THE George H. Swifts are enjoying Athens, we hear, the college town of the family especially. From there they are going to Constantinople and then home to the Livermore house on Beacon Hill, where Eleanor will be presented this fall. We wonder if her life will be as eventful as those of the previous occupants, Elizabeth, Mrs. J. Murray Forbes has gone into business, 'tis said, books, or dogs, or what not.

THE SAMUEL WALKERS, who eloped a year ago or less, have a small daughter in the family. Grandpa Walker lives on Brimmer st. and auntie and uncle—the Dwight Proutys—live in a dressy apartment in Paris. They are cousins to the popular Sosnos author who wrote "White Fawn" and who, we hear, is already starting a sequel to it. Daughter Jane Prouty has been at Magnanett on the Cape this summer.

DID YOU KNOW THAT Peaches Point, tucked around the corner from Marblehead and touching Beverly, is one of the most select spots on the North Shore. There you find the Lincoln Davises with Emily and Katherine, Mrs. Frances Crosby Inshield and the Oric Bates with their many children, the Leon Littles and the Billy Aldriches and Ike Edwards. No transients allowed.

BETTY BRADLEY, WHO IS engaged to Charlie Janeway, has been abroad all summer, chaperoning a crowd of Smith College girls—she is expected back about September 1.

Honeymooners Air Trip Off

Marion, Aug. 29 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. A. Felix Du Pont, Jr., whose marriage united two of America's greatest fortunes, were on an automobile honeymoon today, but weather having forced the cancellation of their plans for an aerial trip.

The couple were married yesterday at the home of the bride's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Richard F. (Katherine Stone) Hoyt. The plane they had hoped to make their aerial honeymoon in was a wedding gift from Mrs. Du Pont's father, a founder of the Curtiss-Wright Corporation.

Mrs. Du Pont, the former Eleanor Hoyt, is heiress to the $50,000,000 estate of the late Galen Stone. Her husband is one of the Wilmington, Del., Du Ponts and heir to $60,000,000.

Mr. and Mrs. du Pont met on the flying fields at Miss Mabry's. Mrs. du Pont held the distinction of being the only girl, except Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, ever to pilot Col. Lindbergh.

Du Pont worked as a $20-a-week clerk at the Ludington Air Lines in Washington. The bride gained pilot's license when she was 16. The couple first met at a dinner party and made an engagement to fly together.

More than 1000 guests gathered on the spacious grounds of the Anchorage, the Hoyt estate, to witness the marriage ceremony which was performed by the Rev. Walden Tell of New York.

F. T. McGill, Jr. Weds in N. H.

Miss Virginia L. Frederick, 26, daughter of Mr. Walter F. Frederick, clerk of the Superior Judicial Court for the Commonwealth, and Frederick T. McGill, Jr., of Newton Highlands, '27, were married at the summer residence of the bride's father at Chesham, N. H., by the Rev. Arthur S. Hudson, of the First (Unitarian) Church of Dorchester.

Miss Frederick was graduated from Radcliffe College in 1927 with an A. B. and afterward entered Columbia College, from which in 1931 she was given a degree of M. A. For two years she was secretary of the Unitarian Young People's Religious Union.

Mr. McGill was graduated at Harvard in 1926 and received an A. B. in 1923 the college conferred upon him a degree of M. A. He now is studying for a Ph.D. at Columbia. He is an assistant professor of literature at Dana College at Newark, N. J. He formerly was a vice-president of the Unitarian Young People's Religious Union.

Christ Church to Be Scene of Rites

Wearing a wedding gown of white satin made on simple lines and a cap and veil of old family lace, Miss Dorothy Winthrop will exchange marriage vows with Standish Bradford today at 1 o'clock, uniting two of New England's oldest and most illustrious families. The ceremony, which will be very simple, will be held in the lovely little Christ Church, Hamilton.

The number of guests will be limited to the two families, which in themselves should almost fill the church, and their intimate friends. Immediately afterward they will go on to Groton House, the beautiful summer place of the bride's father, Mr. Frederick Winthrop, for the reception.

The Rev. Endicott Peabody, of Groton School, assisted by the Rev. William F. A. Stride, rector of the church, will officiate. The bride will carry out the note of simplicity by using the old custom of carrying a prayer book rather than flowers.

Miss Katherine Winthrop, the bride's half sister, and Miss Jean Sears, a cousin, will be the only attendants. They will wear dresses of white pan velvet, with hats of the same material, and will carry green and white flowers. The church decorations will carry out the same color scheme of green and white.

Brother Best Man

Mr. Bradford will have his brother, Mr. Thomas K. Bradford, as best man. A large usher group of 12 includes the Messrs. Walter Amory, of Providence; A. Coolidge, of Manchester; Harrison Gardiner, Dr. John Monks, Dr. Sidney Graves, Chandler Bigelow and Phineas Shaw Sprague, of Boston; Richard C. Storey and Frederick Winthrop, brother of the bride, both of Hamilton; Robert Winthrop, a cousin and Barklie McKee Henry, both of New York, and Richard J. Norris, of Brookline.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold S. Bradford of Brookline. He was graduated from Groton in the class of 1924, and the law school in '27. His clubs are the Porcellion and Hasty Pudding.

Miss Winthrop made her debut in the season of 1923-24, and is a member of the Junior League and Vincent Club. After a short wedding trip, as Mr. Bradford is in business, they will be at home in Hamilton after the first of October, where they will make their year-round home.

Bailey-Fay Nuptials

This afternoon is also the date chosen by Miss Minister Fay for her marriage to Mr. Robeson Bailey. Both ceremony and reception are taking place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dudley Fay of 177 Coolidge Hill, Cambridge, at 4:30.

Miss Fay is wearing a gown of simple design in ivory satin, with a cap and veil of old family lace, and will carry white orchids. Her sub-debutante sister, Miss Elinor Fay, who is to be her maid of honor, will wear shell pink mousseline de soie, a matching hat, both trimmed with pale blue, and will carry flowers combining the two shades in blue delphinium and pink rose. The only other attendant, a young cousin, Miss Rosamond Shaine of Groton, is to be the flower girl, and will wear pale blue organdie with a hat of the same shade.

Harvard Instructor

Mr. Mark Hopkins will attend Mr. Bailey as best man, the latter having done the same for him when Mr. Hopkins was married to Miss Dorothy Rogers of Chestnut Hill, just a month ago today. Mr. Bailey, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Marcellus Bailey, of Philadelphia, is a graduate of Harvard in the class of 1929 and since that time has been an instructor of English there, also having classes at Radcliffe where Miss Fay is going to continue her studies, after two years at Bryn Mawr. It would be a strange coincidence if Mr. Bailey were to teach his wife the uses and literature of the English language. He is a member of the Fox, Speakers, Hasty Pudding, Signet, Longwood Cricket and Harvard Clubs of New York.

Miss Fay is connected with some of Boston's oldest families, her mother having been Miss Hester Lawrence, daughter of Mrs. John S. Lawrence of Groton, and through her uncle, the Rev. Endicott Peabody of Groton school, who will officiate at the wedding, assisted by the Rev. Raymond Chapman of New York.

Society Bootlegger Seized With Supply

Sacramento, Cal., Aug. 29 (US)—Declared to have a card index listing the names of 600 Sacramentans prominent in business and social circles, W. G. Welland, alleged "society bootlegger," was arrested with a huge liquor raid.

Bourbon whiskey, Scotch cognac, gin, wines, alcohol and beer, said to be worth $50,000, were confiscated at a house which police asserted Welland used as headquarters for telephone orders.

"40 and 8" Veterans of Maine Entertain

Sanford, Me., Aug. 28—Members of the Sanford Legion Post and auxiliaries and all ex-service men and their ladies not affiliated with any veterans' organization were entertained by the 40 and 8 at Alfred Town Hall.

The drum and bugle corps of Biddeford, Saco, Sanford, Kennebunk and Limerick posts contributed to the program.

FAIR DEB FROM DEDHAM

ANOTHER charming debutante of the coming season is Miss Leslie Blake, daughter of the Arthur Blakes of Dedham. Miss Blake, who has been spending the summer at Cohasset, was at school in Florentine, Italy, last winter, while her sister, Harriet, was being presented.

U. S. VIRTURE GETS A MEDAL AND A DOUBT

—By Gilbert Seldes—

I GRANT YOU that it is unpatriotic, but it is not seditious for me to believe that Bertrand Russell (an Englishman and an earl) has a better mind than Vice-President Charles Curtis. It is the privilege of democracies to be governed by Curtises and not by Russells; it is also their privilege to make mean comments on their rulers. In the present instance Mr. Russell, writing a few weeks in advance, supplied criticism of the Vice-President, who, the other day, addressed the Loyal Order of Moose in purely Vice-Presidential terms.

GILBERT SELDES

The head of the Senate is proud of his country and is grateful that we are a nation "of homeloving and home-building people who still believe that a closely united tone of husband, wife and children is God's best gift to man." He believes that the fulfillment of domestic duty gives a higher pleasure than dalliance on the primrose path. But there is something aggressive, a missionary zeal, a hostility to others, in him.

Who Envies Whom?

He feels obliged to point a finger and murmur a warning:

"It is a great misfortune to have to live in a country like some that exist today, where the old-time faith in the home as the true center of family life and in religion as the true salvation of man have been discarded for other and different beliefs. I am sure you all will agree with me that our country is the envied leader all nations because we have held unswervingly to our ideals."

Statistics on our enviability are not at hand, and I think I remember that even five years ago, when we were envied enough, it was for our cash and credit, and not for our morals. However, it is not for me, but for Mr. Russell, to supply criticism. His article, which appeared in the New York American lately, took up the question of visitors to Paris and the moral holiday they enjoy there, and made the point that Americans and Britons like those things in foreign countries which do not exist at home, whereas the Frenchman, traveling, cares only for the things in foreign lands which are French in nature and spirit.

The Frenchman's Way

Russell's explanation is this:

"The French, in building up their way in life, have been thinking mainly of what was agreeable to themselves; while many Americans, and not a few British, under the influence of their lofty ethical standards, have been thinking mainly of what would be good for their neighbors. What is good for us is, alas, not always agreeable, though it is gratifying to think that we are producing what is good for others. Consequently the pleasure to be derived from American civilization is the altruistic pleasure of reflecting upon the noble ways we women it is producing, while for private delight countries based upon a less exalted morality are more agreeable."

And this Mr. Russell thinks, is why Americans when they travel abroad patronize and enjoy things they would not countenance at home.

Mr. Russell does not say that America is greater or less great than France; he says that our intentions differ, that we want satisfactions for which the French do not care, and that they have delights which we crave but do not enjoy. Writing before the sacramental words of our Vice-President were uttered, he supplies just enough doubt of our leadership, of the envy of other nations, and of the universal appeal of our ideals.

Meet Your Neighbor

Adventure isn't far away,
It's not a distant way,
Beyond the dim horizon where we'll never get to go.
It's near at hand to all of us,
As near as Great and Small of us,
It keeps in step beside us as we're trudging to and fro.

Adventure's ever near to us
It's likely to appear to us
In humdrum ways before our gaze in office, home and street.
Typewriter keyboards clattering
And rivet-hammers battering
Ring out Adventure's rhythms with every tap and beat!

Adventure is the gleam of life
That glorifies the scheme of life,
The light that lies in woman's eyes—the zest, the golden glee
That gilds our humdrum history
With bright romance and mystery——
Adventure's never out of sight—if we could only see!

Other Men's Ideas

From "Nelson," a forthcoming biography by C. Wilkinson (Longman's):

"And as in love so in war. Wellington, the realist, disliked the bloody business; Nelson saw it as a crusade. Nelson loved and idealized his men; Wellington despised his and said so . . . Nelson always attacked. He attacked in column against a French or a Spanish fleet in line, breaking that line, and making the issue certain within an hour or two of the firing of the first shot.

"Wellington reversed these tactics. . . . We have never lost the tradition that a British army is at its best in defense—or retreat. We even extend the idea to foreign armies . . . But the sea tradition is all the other way. There exists no prejudice in favor of rearguard actions by the British Navy. There is instead the tradition of the 'Nelson touch.'"

Menace of Old Age

—By Bertrand Russell—

ONE OF THE GREATEST PERILS of our time has crept upon us almost unobserved. The skill of the medical profession has prolonged the span of human life, but has not yet learned to prolong the span of human capacity. Throughout the last 60 years people have been getting born less and less and have also died less and less. The result is that the average age of the population is continually increasing.

Strange to say, the doctors who produce this result by skillful minuatration to their aged patients are thought to deserve well of the public.

When Pope Adrian VI (the last non-Italian to occupy the Papal See) died a few months after his elevation, deputations of eminent Romans marched with congratulations to the house of his physician. But this spirit, alas! has died out.

The results of this unfortunate misdirection of scientific ability are already becoming apparent. I have the misfortune to live in a country (England) whose government is composed almost entirely of men over 70.

Radical in Plight

I can remember a period when they had vigor and initiative; there was a time when it seemed to them quite natural to act in accordance with their beliefs. But there is no standing up to physiology. As our tissues stiffen, our habits become more set; we go through the same motions every day (I am speaking as an old man) when we shave, when we brush our hair, or when we relate our favorite anecdote.

We may remain intellectually convinced of the necessity of change, since this is one of our fixed verbal habits, but we cannot bear actual change. The aged radical is therefore in the sad situation that he can only be happy so long as he is ineffective; he cannot stop doing any of the things that he always has done, including the advocacy of change, but not, of course, including its actual realization.

An Age of Age

Most old men have the good sense to do what they can to prevent even those changes in the environment which they have always advocated; consequently every increase in medical skill is bound to make the world more and more conservative. Probably in another hundred years most people will be over 80; they will be doddering, mumbling and altogether senile; but rich, respected and powerful; they will hold all the important posts, in spite of the eagerness of young men of 60 to replace them.

In such a world all progress will be impossible. What is to be done about it? Swift, who foresaw the danger, suggested that at the age of 80 a man suspected of undue longevity should be deprived of his vote and his property. This is an admirable suggestion, but already the old men have so firm a hold of power that I am afraid Swift's plan is not practical politics.

I suggest that all medical men under 60 should band themselves together into a league for the defense of youth, and that they should exert their influence to prevent all researches calculated to prolong the life of the very old. By the threat of such a movement, the old may be induced to surrender their power. Once robbed of their power, they might become objects of benevolence.

Communism's End

—By Deems Taylor—

NEWS COMES of a new decision made by Stalin in connection with the working out of Russia's Five-Year-Plan. Better work, he announces, is to be rewarded by more pay for the man who does it. The worker who is more energetic, more efficient, more intelligent than his fellows is to receive more money than the clumsy, th lazy, the stupid.

I cannot understand why this statement has not caused more excitement than has greeted it.

For this announcement of Stalin's marks the end of the communistic experiment in Russia. Not that the end will be immediately apparent. But the end it is.

There will still be committees of this and that; men will still call each other "comrade"; the word "communist" will still apply only to a man who labors with his hands; the Five-Year Plan will go on, and will probably be realized; life will grow easier; if the rest of the world will let her alone, and stop being frightened into hysterics by her, Russia will emerge a fed, housed, comfortable and reasonably happy state.

But not a communistic state. Communism in Russia is doomed. Stalin has just signed its death warrant.

How Communism Fails

Is this a fantastic notion? Let us see. There are many definitions of communism, but the one my dictionary gives is probably as good as any other. It is this: "Common ownership of property, and state control of labor, religion, social relations, etc." The last part is, I think, open to argument as imperfectly exclusive; for there was state control of labor during the war on the part of many nations that were anything but communistic, while the Roman Catholic Church and the Church of England, neither of which has ever been cordial to communism, have both championed state control of religion and social relations.

There remains, then, the abolition of private property and the common ownership of everything as the essence of communism. But the moment one man receives more pay for his work than another, for no matter what reason, the idea of the common ownership of private property vanishes. If a man's salary is not his private property, what is?

So long as A and B receive exactly the same recompense for their work you may argue that each is simply receiving his share of the common fund; but if A gets more money than B, and is allowed to keep it, he is, in fact if not in theory, being allowed to possess more property than B. The state that pays A more than B is obviously going to let him spend more than B spends; inevitably he is going to buy something that B cannot afford.

So far we know only that the energetic Russian is the better paid than the lazy Russian.

This is the first step.

The second step—and I lay no claim to being a seer in prophesying it—will be the announcement that certain kinds of work are to command higher wages than certain other kinds, that the skillful and intelligent Russian is to be better paid than the unintelligent and unskilled Russian.

Russia has not failed, her communism has. It was bound to fail, and will fail whenever it is tried for countless generations to come. It will fail because its advocates take for granted two things that are not so: They assume, first, that all men are equal in intelligence an dskill; and second, that men will do their best work with no other incentive than the general good.

Marry-Go-Round

WOMAN IS ALWAYS BREAKING LOVE'S TRAFFIC RULES

By HELEN ROWLAND

IN LOVE, as in motoring, a woman is always disobeying the traffic rules—and then wondering how the "smash-up" occurred.

When you see a sign: "No parking here," on a man's heart, do not despair; there is always some little side entrance or alley-way, like "Platonic friendship," where you can wedge your way in.

Always carry protective fenders on your heart, so that it may remain intact, despite the jolts, nicks, and sideswipes.

Watch the "other woman" and don't let her "crowd you" out of your place in a man's affections.

Shut off the motor of your emotions when your husband goes out and says he'll "be back in half an hour." Save your gas until he GETS back.

Don't get panicky when you see dangerous crossings or a parting of the ways ahead. Just go slow and keep your head until Fate gives you the signal to ACT.

HELEN ROWLAND.

Look out for the LITTLE cars in Love's path; you can see a big danger and prepare for it, but it's always the unexpected little flivver of a flirtation that upsets you.

Never change your mind after you have signalled for a "turn" in your affections, if you expect a man to take you seriously. Sending him away "forever" tonight and calling him up tomorrow morning is a woman's way of wrecking everything.

When you feel a sentimental skid threatening, put on your emotional chains—and go slow. And don't allow yourself to be blinded by ANY man's lights; no man is as dazzling as he seems, while he's making love.

If you see a man is determined to "pass" you up, give him the road and save yourself a lot of painful heart-bruises.

Blow your own horn occasionally; nobody else is going to do it for you.

A woman's heart is always either exceeding the speed-limit or getting parked in the wrong place; but no matter what happens to your heart, DON'T LOSE YOUR HEAD—and you'll be safe!

Short Breath Is Indication of Trouble

By Dr. R. S. COPELAND.

DIFFICULTY in breathing, particularly after any exertion, is a symptom of importance. Early attention to this disorder will prevent later distress.

Dr. Copeland

Within the past few years, after walking or climbing stairs, have you noticed a shortness of breath? If you have observed it and have not been to a physician lately, go and have a careful physical examination.

Shortness of breath and difficulty in breathing following slight exertion may indicate some change in the muscle of the heart. Of course I do not mean that one who has played a strenuous game of tennis or baseball should not be short of breath. Shortness of breath after strenuous exercise is normal. However, if you have noticed that in climbing up a flight or two of stairs you must stop and catch your breath, that is a different story.

Sometimes people notice that their feet swell and that they have difficulty in taking off their shoes at night. Swelling of the shin bones and shortness of breath are two danger signals that the body is giving you. You should heed these warnings and seek the necessary relief and care.

She Lost Him in Breaking Date

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

About four months ago, I had some girls and men at our house, and took a great fancy to one of the young men. I think he liked me. Since then, I have been going out with him quite frequently. One day he took me home from work in his car and asked to see me that night. I refused because I had another date, but I did not tell him so. That same evening the young man, I happened to be out drove past the other boy's home, and we were seen. Ever since that night, this first young man speaks coldly to me or not at all. Will you please tell me how I can bring him back, for he means much to me.

PATTY

Dear Patty: You made your first mistake in not telling the young man that you had a date that night. Since you didn't do that, you might explain, the next time you see him, or you might write him a note. These little misunderstandings occur sometimes, but if you are tactful I think you can bring him back.

Collin Puts Fanchon to Test

"I KNOW THAT Hawaiian moons are very lovely and young men very susceptible. I've been in Hawaii," Collin said.

"Are you trying to pay me compliments?" Fanchon demanded.

It was her first word to him. He flicked the ashes from his cigarette and smiled. Her voice was as lovely as she, he admitted ungrudgingly. And there was a flash of steel through all the loveliness and softness of voice and person. Here was, he admitted to himself further, no simpering, silly, gushing little creature. As he had allowed himself to imagine she would be from her letters to his mother and his general mental impression of her, but a very beautiful and probably intelligent girl. An enemy worthy of his mettle.

"I'm not complimentary," he replied, and smiled, "I'm merely truthful. You are much better to look upon than I dreamed. Very easy on the eyes. But that doesn't alter the case."

"I take it," Fanchon said, demurely, "that you are not beside yourself with rapture at my appearance here. Why? What have I done to you? Are you afraid," she mocked him, knowing better, "that I will rob you of any of your rightful inheritance?"

His face darkened. He was really, she thought, an astonishingly handsome man. She hated him and disliked him but his good looks could not be denied. They looked at one another with hostility, she with not resentment, he with cool rancour. The very air of the rose garden, fragrant, soft, sea-wooed, sun steeped, seemed suddenly electric with this curious and out of proportion antagonism between two young people.

"Hardly," replied Collin Carstairs, with forced indifference. "I happen to have far more money than I need. It is not my business nor concern what my mother chooses to do with her own. I would have been perfectly willing if she had accepted half a dozen girls . . . strangers—waifs, if need be, out of the gutter. I would have been more than willing. I would have helped. But you!" he said scornfully.

"What about me?" demanded Fanchon, angrily, "what, exactly is the matter with me . . .?" . . .

"Far be it from me to elucidate," answered Collin, casually. "I think you know, perfectly well. Yet my hostility dates back further than your—escapades."

Escapades? thought Fanchon, frantically. Evelyn . . .? demure, prim, mouselike Evelyn . . . and escapades?

"In the first place," Collin went on slowly, "Your mother's quarrel with her family is none of my concern. But when, whether she had right on her side or not, at the time of the break, when my mother wrote her, making many generous and, I would say, abject offers of peace, your father took it upon himself to write my mother in terms that were little short of insulting. And your mother not only permitted this but encouraged it.

"Why, knowing what heart-break this action afforded your mother, should I welcome you into the family simply because you found it expedient to change your mind? When, at your father's death my mother wrote you, alone, the letter you wrote to her in return was far from friendly, I can, as I have said, understand that you changed your mind because of the material advantages held out to you by my mother. I can understand that perhaps you were anxious to leave San Francisco before the heads of the school in which you taught learned of certain of your Hawaiian adventures."

"It was clear to me why you gave my mother's name as reference to the San Francisco school and why your professional references did not date from the Hawaiian period. Naturally, a school which had dispensed with your services because of your conduct was not going to supply you conduct was not going to supply you told the people in San Francisco that your stay in the islands had been in the nature of a visit. If you told them anything."

Fanchon's mind was working furiously. Evidently Evelyn had left Hawaii under some sort of cloud. Evidently this Collin Carstairs had had her looked up and had found out all about it. And, very evidently, she had given Jennie's name as her nearest relative and had refrained from telling the people in her last position anything of her island experiences. Now that Fanchon looked back, she recalled that on the boat during their mutual journey, Evelyn had questioned her closely concerning her knowledge of the school in which Evelyn had taught in Hawaii, and, finding that she knew nothing, had dropped the subject.

"I dislike," said Fanchon, coldly, "all this hinting and implying. Please endeavor to make yourself a trifle clearer, Mr. Carstairs."

He lifted an eyebrow.

"Must I, dear cousin?"

"I am afraid so. For," she went on, "you labor, very evidently, under a false impression."

"I think not," he said smoothly, "In the first place, shortly after your arrival in Hawaii, you promised yourself rather severely with a naval officer. A married man.

"When the story broke and you were questioned, you swore in tears that you had not known Commander Gaines was married, although his story did not agree with yours. He said he had told you . . . and that very distinctly.

A WORTH ENSEMBLE For Dinner Wear SKETCHED IN PARIS

Martha Lee

Worth is showing this dinner ensemble with coat and skirt of black satin and a bodice, joined to the skirt, in green and white printed chiffon. The coat ends in triple tiers at the hips and there is a side-tiered effect on the wide sleeves. The larger collar is of silver fox. A group of draped folds, starting at the waistline, extends down the front of the skirt and there is a soft circular movement at each side as well. The skirt just clears the instep.

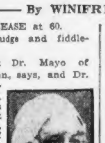
Do Not Worry---That's Real Heart Insurance

By WINIFRED BLACK

HEART DISEASE at 60.

Pooh-pooh, fudge and fiddlesticks!

That's what Dr. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., says, and Dr. Mayo really ought to know.



Winifred Black

Oh, yes, men die of heart disease at 60, and they die of heart disease at 40, or at 30, for that matter, but there's no sense in it.

No sense at all.

We used to think that a man's heart wore out after 45, but Dr. Mayo says that a man's heart ought to be just as good at 60 as it was at 30, and if he's a good, sensible man it will be better than it was at 30, because he'll know enough to take care of it.

What does a young man know or care about his heart or his lungs or his liver, or his brain, for that matter?

He's busy getting acquainted with life.

He's out after money, and out after power, and out after thrills, and he can't be bothered thinking about strain and fatigue and diet and sleep.

When a man's 60 years old he is either through with life or he's through with work, and it isn't work that overstrains the heart, they say—it's worry.

Old men know better than to worry.

A man of 60 has worried and fretted and fumed over nothing so many times that he knows enough never to worry and fret and fume over anything—any more.

Nothing's worth it.

Nothing at all.

Love—when love knocks at the door, and steps out of the window, and what of it!

The sun rises, and so does the moon, just the same when Billy falls in love with the other girl and the earth grows green in April and white in January. No matter who loves whom.

Money—you never know your real friends till your money is gone, every cent of it.

Fame?—the idle word in a world full of meaningless phrases.

Success, distinction—what do they amount to after all?

The man who's your worst enemy today may be your best friend tomorrow.

It's all a dream anyhow, the bitterness, and the distrust, and the disillusion—just a short and passing dream.

The man of sixty knows all this or he ought to know it, and so he lets his heart rest and the good old heart pays him back by keeping time like a fine, well-regulated clock, and there's no more trouble about it.

Happy days, Doctor Mayo! You have earned them and I hope you'll have them, just as long as that splendid heart of yours goes beating on.

Salads With Bread and Cheese

By MARTHA LEE.

VEGETABLES and fruit salads, in all their infinite varieties, are certainly ideal summer time meals, but many seem to feel that they do not wholly satisfy appetites sharpened by summer swimming, tennis and what-not. If you'll serve some form of cheese sandwich with your fruit or vegetable salad I think you'll find the meal is better balanced, for the salads certainly do lack the proteins which the cheese provides.

Martha Lee

The cheese crackers often served with salads can be further improved by spreading with Philadelphia cream cheese and putting together sandwich fashion, but bread is really the ideal carrier for cheese.

In choosing your bread for your cheese sandwiches, remember that the more graham the cheese the darker the bread. Graham bread is a good choice for pimento or ordinarily snappy cheese. It's good, too, with cream cheese mixed with diced olives or pimentos.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

GRAND HOTEL

By VICKI BAUM

THERE WAS music here, too, but you could not see where it came from. Girls' legs were to be seen dancing in the agut of the lanterns, distinctly seen as far as the knees, but beyond all was swallowed in darkness. Kringelein wanted to keep tight hold of Gaigern's hand like a little boy.

Everything here was obscured and indistinct. Painted partitions separated the ottomans and low tables. Kringelein observed that he was drinking iced champagne. He had visions of many forms. They crowded upon him with a strange and eerie sweetness. Kringelein sang a soft accompaniment in his high tenor to the melody of two invisible violins. Kringelein rocked to and fro. His head lay pressed in the cool hollow of a girl's arm.

"Another bottle?" a waiter asked him severely.

Kringelein ordered another bottle. Kringelein was sorry, for the waiter, who looked like a conspirative when he bent down to the light of the lantern to write down the order. Kringelein was in a soft-hearted condition. He was absurdly sorry for the waiter and for the girls who were so jolly and had to dance so late, and he was absurdly sorry for himself. He could be heard singing. Gaigern, lost in his reflections, was sitting bolt upright on a wicker chair nearby. He heard the high tremulous voice singing "Rejoice in life while the lamp still burns." Fatheud, thought Gaigern with male volence. On the way back he'd get hold of his pocketbook and then for Vienna, he thought, frowning as he clung to the verge of his perilous existence . . .

Suddenly Gaigern heard him groan. It was a piercing and incredible sound, full of dread and tortured humanity.

"What's the matter?" Gaigern asked in the utmost alarm.

"Oh—pains," came the answer, wrung from the darkness near Kringelein's face. Gaigern picked up one of the lanterns and put it on the table. There sat Kringelein, rigid and upright on the upholstered seat with his two hands clasped like the links of a chain. The lamp was blue and it made Kringelein's face blue, with a great round black mouth from which groans issued. Gaigern new this mask of pain from severely wounded cases in the war. He quickly put an arm under Kringelein's head and, like a good comrade, supported his heaving shoulders.

"Dead drunk?" asked a girl. She was very young still and very common in her dress of black sequins.

"Be quiet," Gaigern answered.

Kringelein raised his eyes to him, tortured and torn with pain. He forced himself to a piteous and heroic attempt at good form.

"Now it's I who am 'groggy,'" he said with his blue lips, and he meant his dazed, almost unconscious, fought-out and collapsing condition. It was a lame but courageous joke that broke in the middle and ended in groans.

"But what's the matter with you?" asked Gaigern in alarm.

And Kringelein replied almost maudible: "I think—I've got—to die——"

At two o'clock in the morning seven utterly exhausted, limp, and dejected persons, carrying black cases, left the Grand Hotel by entrance No. 11. They were the members of the jazz band going home in their moist shirts, discontented with their pay as all musicians are in every corner of the globe. The telephone attendant drank black coffee to keep himself alert.

"Shall we go up now?" Dr. Otternschlag asked himself as he drank up his brandy. "Yes, I think we might go now," he replied to himself. Through the revolving door just then there came a chill rush of air smelling of dust and rain. Otternschlag turned round.

"Aha," was all he said, after his one serviceable eye had taken in the sight that confronted it. He saw Gaigern coms in through the revolving door, pushing the almost senseless Kringelein in most senseless Kringelein was groaning and moaning. Dr. Otternschlag was very well able to distinguish cases of drunkenness from cases of serious illness.

"The keys of 69 and 70," Gaigern said to the night porter in a low voice. "My friend is in a bad way. A doctor, the sooner the better."

"I am a doctor. Hot milk at once to No. 70," Dr. Otternschlag said suddenly in a surprisingly alert tone of voice to the porter, and followed the others.

The elevator stopped with a jerk. Gaigern picked Kringelein up and carried him to bed. While he got him out of his clothes and buttoned him in his new pajamas, Otternschlag disappeared with a busied air.

"I'll be back in a moment," he said, and went out with his stiff shanks galvanized by a new energy.

When he came back he found Kringelein lying rigidly in his bed. Gaigern left the bedside and made way for Otternschlag, who took a syringe out of a little black case.

Kringelein sat on a cloud with closed eyes, and it bore him swiftly away.

"There we are," said Otternschlag, and after a moment he laid Kringelein's head down on the quilt. "He's at peace for the time."

KEITH'S REVIEWED By Nicholas Young «» «» Harris Morgan SEES NEW 'MET' FILM

Wheeler and Woolsey at Their Comic Best in 'Caught Plastered'

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

With an insanely amusing background to furnish play for their talents, Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey give "Caught Plastered" their own specialized brand of humors. This new and singularly comic film holds the screen at Keith's, and holds it to good purpose.

As things come and go among filmland's widely assorted teams of fun makers, Mr. Wheeler and Mr. Woolsey have managed well.

Nicholas Young

In "Caught Plastered" they set a new high tempo in plain and fancy clowning; they indulge freely in the antics that delight the eager fan that is always willing to take another laugh for good measure. The highly improbable narrative finds Messrs. Wheeler and Woolsey the principal inhabitants of the strangest drug store ever seen on the screen; or anywhere else for that matter. Among other things, this establishment has a radio station somewhere near the book counter, and just around the corner from the sheet music division the recognized patron may regale himself with a highly alcoholic brand of lemon soda.

It may be asserted at the start that no sort of drug was ever sold in this shop. Viewed solely on its merits, it would not have been at all surprising if Ed Wynn or Joe Cook turned up to lend Wheeler and Woolsey a hand in the perfume or rubber goods department. With all its cinematic tricks of situation, it would indeed be astonishing if "Caught Plastered" did not turn out to be a remarkably good comedy. And it does so, with most of the honors going to the smooth and suave gymnastics and facial contortions of Robert Woolsey.

Observe, if you please, the cigar in Mr. Woolsey's mouth. It proves an adequate barometer of emotion; it can show, by turn, amazement, consternation, bewilderment and dark despair.

Consider the quivering attitude of this same cigar in the enormously humorous scene where four genial gentlemen, having partaken copiously of spiked lemon soda, feel it their duty as citizens to sing that pathetic ditty, "Sweet Adeline," while Mr. Woolsey is vainly striving to give an instructive lecture via radio!

Some credit for a remarkably fine performance is due Mr. Wheeler, but when all the returns are in and the ballots counted, Mr. Woolsey leaves him sadly in eclipse. But perhaps Mr. Wheeler's essential sadness makes his companion's comedy all the funnier.

By any count, "Caught Plastered" is the most amusing effort these two cinematic clowns have ever sent to the screen, and they occupy the foreground so effectively that Jason Robards, Dorothy Lee and Lucy Beaumont are mere embellishments upon a canvas of comedy.

'Great Lover' at Twin Houses

The feature picture for the week at the Modern and Beacon is "The Great Lover," an adaptation of the stage play with Adolphe Menjou, Irene Dunne, Ernest Torrence, Neil Hamilton, Baclanova and Cliff Edwards in the principal roles.

Menjou is cast in the role of an opera star who is quite as successful in his affaires de coeur as in his singing. The overlapping of some of these affaires offers some amusement, but the situation becomes serious when the opera star selects a less pliable damsel as the object of his attentions.

On the same bill is "The Arizona Terror," an outdoor story of the West, starring Ken Maynard and his horse, Tarzan. Paramount News and other short subjects complete the program.

STAGE STARS SHARE HONORS WITH SCREEN FAVORITES

Jack Waldron and a girl billed as Miss Harriett top the stage bill at the Met, appearing in a skit called "North, South, East, West." Waldron provides the humor, Miss Harriett the charm.

Caught in a contest over the possession of a lime soda, Bert Wheeler and Dorothy Lee go into a huddle in which smart repartee is the main idea. Scene from "Caught Plastered," at RKO Keith's.

'This Modern Age' Gay and Diverting Entertainment

What good dialogue and excellent acting will do for a picture, is shown in "This Modern Age," new film for Joan Crawford at the State.

In the past, Miss Crawford has been abandoned to carry the whole burden of her pictures, to sink or swim, as it were, by her own unaided efforts. Now, her supporting cast includes such players as Pauline Frederick, Monroe Owsley, Neil Hamilton, Albert Conti and Hobart Bosworth.

The brightest of all these brilliant people are Miss Frederick and Mr. Owsley, whose effortless suave and easy acting quite eclipses that of the star. Mr. Owsley, in particular, is a Godsend to the talking screen: an able actor on stage, he takes most kindly to the cinema.

In "This Modern Age," she, in company with all the other players, is given dialogue that fairly crackles.

The plot, itself, is unusual and most diverting. But it might easily sag without the bright speeches, the really gay scenes, the supreme spectacle of Mr. Owsley, under a big bear rug, wondering dimly what day it is and where he is and what his right name might be if he were asked.

Also at the State is another of William Tilden's tennis films.

H. M.

Roach Comedy at Orpheum

"Pardon Us," first Hal Roach Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature length comedy, starring Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, is the current screen feature at Loew's Orpheum.

The vaudeville bill is headed by Ina Williams and Jere Delaney, musical comedy favorites; Harry Webb and Milton Douglas in "Being Bothered"; Anthony Flora, Litka Kademova and the Blake Sisters in "Rhythm and Taps," and Virginia Arnold and Bette Platt in a miniature revue are some of the other acts.

Howard Begins New Season

The Old Howard opens its season today with the new Columbia Burlesque Association's "Hi-Ho Everybody." The comedians with this organization are Cliff Bragdon and "Cocoo" Morrissey. Virginia Jones will present several dance specialties. In addition to the burlesque there will be a program of pictures and vaudeville. The fight pictures of the Schmeling-Stribling bout will be shown, with the 15th round done in slow motion. The picture features will be Jack Holt in "The Last Parade" and Buck Jones in "Texas Ranger." There will be a midnight show on Friday.

'Secrets of a Secretary' Presents Metaxa as New Talkie Star

By HARRIS MORGAN

A new face in the films is that of Georges Metaxa, Rumanian and ex-musical comedy star, who makes his bow in "Secrets of a Secretary," new film with Claudette Colbert at the Metropolitan. In appearance, Mr. Metaxa is something of a second Valentino, and he seems to have considerable ability as well.

Mr. Metaxa, in no sense, may be said to run away with the current screen play. Miss Colbert is altogether too good an actress for that, and moreover, Herbert Marshall and Mary Boland are in the cast.

The plot of "Secrets of a Secretary," a slightly improbable affair, deals with the fortunes of a New York society miss who weds a villainous gentleman, believing him to be a cattle king. Forthwith, the father of said society girl dies, she discovers that she is penniless and that her cattle-baron husband never saw a cow in his life.

The direction of George Abbott is distinguished by a certain nicety in posing the principal characters against night club backgrounds and a few really remarkable shots of the New York skyline in the hard grey light of dawn.

Miss Colbert is her usual charming and vivacious self, Miss Boland has some very good lines to speak and speaks them very well. Mr. Metaxa distinguishes himself and all the minor characters do well.

While the title, "Secrets of a Secretary" is never completely justified, the photoplay does contain plenty of exciting action, which is rather a novelty in the talkies nowadays.

On stage, the new show is "North, South, East and West," with such diverting stars as Block and Sully, Bert Faye, Helen O'Shea, Elvira Tanzi, Glen Dale, and a troupe of 18 personable young ladies of the chorus.

Casey on Football Will Miss Ticknor Has New Stars ↑ Tunney's Cash Down Likely to Fight Comeback Epidemic ↓

LET LANGFORD BOX ONLY EXHIBITIONS

Eddie Casey, Harvard football coach, isn't shedding any tears just because the great Ben Ticknor has graduated. Casey would probably swap any half dozen players on his squad to have Ticknor on the job at center again this year, but he knows such a thing is impossible and so is making plans to give the Crimson a great eleven.

"We'll just have to get along without Ben," said Casey, good naturedly. "I have three or four players who are now quite unknown who are ready to flash some brilliant football. After all, us oldtimers must give way to the youngsters. They have the spark that carries them to greatness on the gridiron.

"The Harvard squad will report for practice on September 15. Some of the other colleges will be on the job earlier, but we have an agreement with Yale and Princeton which sets September 15 as the opening day on which to knock a pigskin around.

"Our first game is with Bates on October 3. We play the Army at West Point on October 17. That will be a tough game, especially as we will be battling away from home and early in the season.

"There has been some talk of the game being shifted to New York on account of the fact the stadium at West Point can only care for 28,000 persons. I believe, however, that the clash will come off at West Point."

It will be Casey's first year as varsity football coach at Harvard. He experienced remarkable success as a freshman coach and later as assistant to Arnold Horween.

Eddie was one of the flashiest football players to ever rip through a rival line. He had fire and generalship as a player, and has carried these qualities up the ladder with him.

Langford-Berlenbach Bout Harmful

Up at St. Albans, Vt., there is talk about a boxing contest with small gloves between Sam Langford and Paul Berlenbach. I hope the person who gave me this information was in error as to the real facts.

Langford is almost totally blind, while Berlenbach is only a shell of his former self. Sam has been permitted to box exhibitions with big gloves against aged opponents so that he could pick up a little extra cash. I do not object to this practice as it is unlikely that the "Tar Baby" will get injured in such contests.

But when they start talking of matching a man almost blind for a regular boxing bout it is time that somebody stepped to bat and knocked the idea over. I'm going to accept that responsibility no matter who I hurt.

A Langford-Berlenbach bout should not be permitted for humane reasons.

If an attempt is made to stage the Langford-Berlenbach match, the promoters will hear quite a little from us. And it won't be of a complimentary nature either. There is a limit to even our patience.

Gene Tunney to Go After More Gold

I believe Bill Corum had the right dope when he announced that Gene Tunney is going to stage a comeback. Bill added that the story would probably be denied by all parties concerned, but that time would prove it to be correct.

Tunney, like the rest of the former millionaires, is probably in need of a little financial nourishment. Gene invested his money in what he considered gilt-edged securities. During the past two years, the falling stock market has not treated the so-called blue chip stocks any better than it has the cats and dogs.

Gene has taken quite a wallop in the pocketbook, and is turning to the ring to build back his house of jack. Don't think for a minute that Tunney is broke or is worrying about where he is going to get the money for his next trip to Europe as he is probably wealthy as you and I look upon money. But when a millionaire loses $300,000 to $400,000 he feels that he should step out some place and win his money back. And the only way Tunney can get big dough is by hopping into the ring with fellows like Schmeling, Dempsey and Sharkey.

Johnny Buckley took advantage of the Tunney comeback story by announcing that Sharkey is still waiting for Gene to go through with a bout which was billed by the late Tex Rickard for New York on March 17, 1927.

Boxing clubs will have to supply wheel chairs for some of the principals in main bouts if the oldtimers persist in staging comebacks. Dempsey, Leonard, Tunney! Who next? Maybe Rip Van Winkle!

DeGlane Settles His Managerial Troubles

Henri DeGlane proved he is blessed with intelligence as well as the ability to wrestle when he straightened out his managerial troubles. He has secured a release from the Olympic Development Co., Inc., and Stanislaus Zbyszko who claimed they had some sort of an interest in the Frenchman.

Now that DeGlane is on his own he can devote all of his time to proving he is the greatest wrestler in the world. Henri convinced me the night he licked Gus Sonnenberg at Braves Field that he is the best wrestler to come along since Frank Gotch passed out of the picture.

I have seen Sonnenberg rip radiators out of position, and toss glances around as if they were bean bags, but in DeGlane he found a young man who didn't care how rough and tough he is. Perhaps the Frenchman gets his strength from drinking red wine. I'd like to try his training system.

Random Shots at the Target

A lot of boys and girls and old men and girls who are not girls any longer are going to engage in two and a half mile swims Sunday. They will start and finish at the bath house in Revere. A flock of A. A. U. officials will be on hand to make sure nobody is towed by a speed boat or rides along on the back of a friendly shark. It has been decided that the girls and boys must not take part in the same race. They have arranged separate events. I don't know what the reason for this is, but I suppose it is all right.

My idea of nothing at all is a long distant swimming race. You will find that a whole lot of people don't feel like I do on this matter if you try to get near the finish of the Revere event Sunday.

DEMPSEY IN 'COMEBACK' SCORES K.O.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 29 (AP)—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, knocked out Big Tom Sawyer, Vancouver heavyweight, in one minute and 15 seconds and then took on two other fighters in a boxing exhibition here last night.

Sawyer ripped in with both hands, but Dempsey came back with left hooks to the chin and rights to the body and the Vancouver man went sprawling for the ten count.

The next opponent, "Tiny" Lamar, Tacoma heavyweight, lasted one round, but was knocked down twice for counts of eight and five.

Del Wolfe of Bellingham, Wash., went two rounds, landing one heavy right to Dempse.'s head, which, however, failed to shake Dempsey. Dempsey was clowning around with his man in the last minute.

Dempsey boxed with smaller gloves than he used in his three previous exhibitions.

QUARTER FINALS ON MONDAY

Longwood Cricket Club, Aug. 29—Plans to complete Longwood's unfinished tenis symphony were still far out in left field at a late hour to-day.

Richard Bishop, referee of the National Doubles Tournament announced a new schedule whereby the deferred quarter final match of Lilott and Doeg vs. Shields and Wood wil be completed Monday morning.

On Tuesday, two semi-final matches will be held, and on Wednesday the much put-off corona tion will take place, weather permitting.

Immediately upon referee Bishop's confirmation of the new program, old Sol came out in stone cracking fishion. Out into the sunshine stepped Lott and Doeg, the defending champions, and armed with rain checks the titlists went to Fenway Park where Nick Altrock and Al Schack were to play their singles match—also rained out yesterday.

A host of tennis hopefuls hung around the historic clubhouse where play in the national mixed doubles, veterans doubles and inter-and-son's tournaments was scheduled to go on while the sun lasted.

To make matters more interesting in Cosmic circles, a checkup before the Longwood matches revealed that Berkely Bell, who was to be partner to Miss Joan Ridley, the English star in the mixed doubles, was in New York.

Mule Haas Lost to A's for Season

Philadelphia, Aug. 29 (INS)—The Philadelphia Athletics will lose the services of Mule Haas, center fielder, for the remainder of the season, and maybe for the World Series.

This was announced here today by Connie Mack, the manager of the club. Haas broke his wrist a few weeks ago during one of the games and has not yet mended as it was expected.

The club trainer, "Doc" Ebling, explained the trouble as difficulty with the "knuckle bone" of the left wrist.

Trowbridge Beats Wood at Cohasset

A downpour nearly ruined the match play in the South Shore championship at Cohasset Golf Club. The storm forced the postponement of all but one of the second round contests.

Win Trowbridge of Cohasset defeated Fred Wood of Hatherly in a 19-hole match after being four down at the turn.

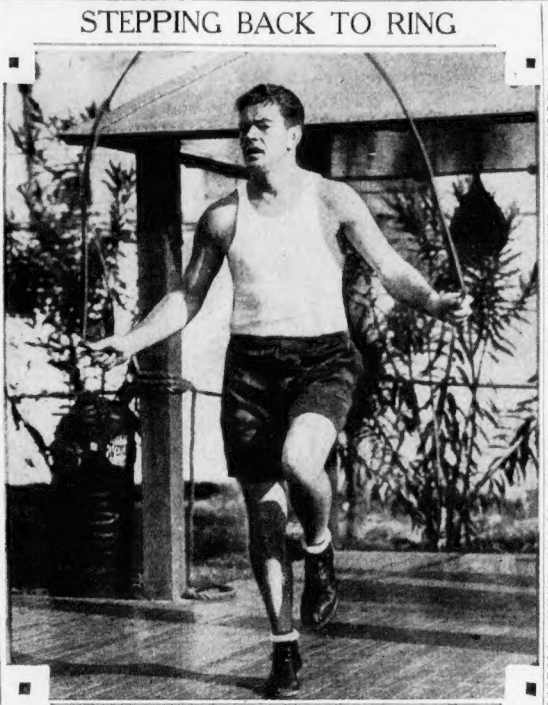
STEPPING BACK TO RING



Right this way, folks. Exhibit A is none other than Gentleman Gene Tunney who quit the ring, undefeated heavyweight champion of the world, to adopt a life of peaceful seclusion. Skipping rope pulled on Mr. Tunney and he said the ring would see him no more. But the inside dope (it's outside now as well) is that Gene will stage a comeback. The Knight of the Ring may toss down the gauntlet. He figures he could shellac any of the present crop of fighters. And grab himself a flock of dollars in the process.

G. E. ELEVENS IN CLASH

The stage is set for the important soccer game at the General Electric Stadium, Lynn, tomorrow between the elevens representing the General Electric plants of Lynn and Schenectady.

The contest is the feature attraction of the exhibition season for the elevens and are two of the best amateur combinations of the East. A couple of years ago the Lynn eleven traveled to Schenectady and was beaten, 4 to 1, by the New York State after 90 minutes of play.

Tomorrow's contest is a result of that defeat, for manager Sonny Donnelly of the Lynn Club was so persistent in his demands for a return game that his request finally was granted.

The New Yorkers are a strong combination, evenly balanced both in offence and defense and the Lynn team is going to find the visitors just as stiff a hurdle as in the last meeting.

THE DAILY DOZEN

By M. T. McSWEENEY

Henry J. Miller, football coach at Temple University, plans to drill his squad on the roof of one of the college buildings. Well that's one way of putting a grid team up there.

And if any of the boys has a tendency to run off-side, he'll be cured pretty quickly—or killed.

A Los Angeles promoter has offered Jack Dempsey nearly one thousand dollars a minute to appear in a bout there. Oh! for a few golden moments in a life like Jack's.

Babe Ruth wants to manage a baseball team when his career as a big league player is over. Imagine nine men hitting homers every time they came to bat! It would be very monotonous.

A so-called turf expert was kidnaped recently and held for a large ransom. If the fellow who has given us tips on the races for the last three days ever gets kidnaped, we'll contribute heavily . . . to have him kept away.

Mickey Walker is going to fight again, soon. We don't know when, where, or whom, but we have read that Jack Kearns, his manager, is being sued for back alimony.

Once more postponement of the Longwood national doubles on account of rain, and the committee in charge is thinking of converting the tourney into a water polo exhibition.

Members of the police force in many local cities are taking up golf. The next time you are chased by a motorcycle cop, just ask him about his game . . . and pray that he's shot under a hundred.

Or tell him you didn't know what par is for the boulevard you've burning up.

No matter how many teams report, the football season will not officially open until someone suggests that the Army and Navy settle their dispute and play again.

Or until Major Cavanaugh, Fordham coach, puts on his iron hat.

"Darling back." This does not mean, unfortunately, a long end run, a 50-yard punt or a smashing line play. B. C.'s Darling of 1930-34 is back at the Heights, but only in the capacity of assistant graduate manager of athletics, not as a player.

U. S. Amateur Links Tourney Next Week

By BILL GRIMES

While the 150-odd sectional qualifiers are being eliminated in the annual United States amateur championship next week at Beverly C. C., in the outskirts of Chicago, the stay-at-homes will be busy in these parts.

The New England Professional Golfers' Organization members and their amateur partners will play a 36-hole four ball tournament at the Nashua Country Club on Monday.

One of the outstanding tournaments listed for next week is the three day open handicap medal play event, which the Boston Park Department will stage at Franklin Park, starting on Tuesday. The Sears-Roebuck Co. has donated no less than 15 prizes for this tournament, and a special trophy for the winner of the newspapermen's division.

The Lake Sunapee Country Club will hold its initial women's invitation tournament on Tuesday and Wednesday. This event will be a 36-hole affair, and it will be optional with the contestants as to whether they will play both rounds in one day or spread them over Tuesday and Wednesday.

Big Field for Open at Commonwealth

On Wednesday and Thursday, the Commonwealth Country Club will be host to the open tournament players and as everyone is of the opinion that he can shoot the Chestnut Hill course in almost par figures, there is no doubt but that a record breaking field will compete for the gross and net prizes offered for each of the three divisions.

The Bellevue Golf Club is on the list to stage a three-day open handicap 18-hole medal play tournament, starting on Thursday of the coming week. Bellevue is a much improved course since it has been revamped, but it is still one of the most difficult nine holers to score on in this section.

There are ten New England amateurs in Chicago, for the United States amateur championship and, due to the golf he shot this week at Woodland and Brae Burn, Francis Ouimet is one of the favorites to win the title which Bobby Jones allowed to go by default.

Although the New England section is banking on Ouimet, it will be well to keep an eye on Joe Batchelder, the amateur champion of New England. Batchelder has been playing as well as any amateur in this state, since early last spring.

Beverly is a perfect setup for Batchelder, who has a slight pull on all of his tee shots and who is a master with the mashie niblick.

Tailer and Clare Due to Register

Among the out of Massachusetts golfers who will represent New England in the nationals there are two who should register. Reference is to Tommie Tailer, the Rhode Island amateur champion and Charlie Clare, the Connecticut titleholder.

Clare was the medalist in the qualifying rounds at Brae Burn with a 142, while Tailer was traveling at a championship clip until he met with a slight injury recently, from which he has now recovered.

The failure of Jesse P. Guilford, Woodland; Emery P. Stratton and Clark Hodder, Brae Burn, to go to the nationals after qualifying was a disappointment. Guilford, Stratton and Hodder were sure-fire hits to reach match play at Beverly and their withdrawal opens the way for three outsiders to get in with the elite.

CYCLE CLASSIC TONIGHT

Cycle race fans have plenty of fun in store tonight at the Revere Cycle Track, where Nat Butler stages the greatest bike race of the year, the 62½ mile International Cycling Derby.

The colorful parade of flags before the race will be held as usual. Old Doc Kendall, that grand sportsman, will fire the starting gun and present the valuable trophy to the winner.

A field composed of Letournier, Franco Georgetti, Charley Jaeger, Freddy Spencer, Jimmy Walthour, Franz Duelberg, and Gerard De Bates is bound to stage a great race.

In the parade of flags, when each rider circles the track carrying the colors of his nation, Spencer Walthour and Jaeger will bear the Stars and Stripes; Georgetti will ride with the Italian flag; Duelberg the German, DeBates the Belgian and Letournier the French.

Nat Butler has signed the American champion, Cecil Walker, to ride in a special race against Joe De Vito and Charley Ritter, two of the outstanding contenders for his title, over one-mile heats, best two in three.

Gaelic Football, Hurling Tomorrow

Gaelic football and hurling fans are offered a worth while attraction at Smith Field, North Brighton, tomorrow when the Massachusetts Gaelic Athletic Association stages a hurling contest and a football bill.

In the hurling duel the 15 men selected to represent the Bay State against New York on Labor Day will be opposed by the second team selected.

The football contest is a senior league affair between the Kerry and Clare fifteens and as both are very much in the running for the championship a fine battle is in prospect, with the Kerry outfit a slight favorite to win.

Maureen Orcutt in Lake Sunapee Golf

New London, N. H., Aug. 29—At Lake Sunapee Country Club here an all-star mixed foursome match has been arranged for Monday.

Maureen Orcutt, North and South and Canadian women's champion, and either Helen Hicks, of N. Y., or Margaret Curtis of Essex County, will be the other woman player.

Harry Dowling and A. T. Bufington, low handicap golfer from Fall River, will be the men contestants.

U. S. GIRL WINS $5000 IN SWIM

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 29—Margaret Ravior of Philadelphia stroked herself into a $5000 prize bankroll as a result of her victory in the annual women's 10-mile swim here.

Miss Ravior won the event last year.

Lake Ontario churned its wildest all through the day, prior to the race, and a short time before starting time the race officials decided to hold the race inside a breakwater which runs 100 yards off shore.

Inside the barrier the water was so rough that the swimmers had difficulty all the way.

Mrs. Ethel McGarry of New York, 1924 victor, was second, more than a quarter of a mile in the rear, with Ethel McGarry of New York a few yards behind in third place.

May Elwell of Revere, Mass., an experienced swimmer, was forced to leave the water after covering five miles, because of the intense cold.

Title Tug-of-War at Manchester Meet

The Boston Central Labor Union will hold its annual track meet, field day and picnic at Ocean Garden, Nantasket, on Labor Day. The tug of war for the championship of the Bay State will be a feature.

Some of the leading teams entered for the event this year are the St. Catherines of Charlestown, Brockton, Concord and Nonpareils.

Entries are expected from police and firemen's organizations.

HEAVY IMPOST FOR MONEY KING TODAY

Chicago, Aug. 29 (US)—Giving away chunks of weight and racing on a track that may not suit him, W. S. Kilmer's champion six-year-old horse, Sun Beau, the greatest money winner of the world's turf with $334,000 to his credit, faces a stiff task at Lincoln Fields this afternoon.

Sun Beau will be asked to beat 11 other good horses at a mile and a quarter in the sixth annual running of the Lincoln Handicap which is endowed with $25,000 in added money, one of the biggest events of the whole Chicago racing season.

The 12 listed according to post position are The Nut, Paul Bunyan, Golf Roper, Chief John, Sun Beau, Knight Commander, Pittsburgher, My Dandy, Seguro, Brown Wisdom, No More and Plucky Play.

Sun Beau must shoulder 129 pounds, but he is accustomed to high weight. Plucky Play, which beat him three weeks ago in the $25,000 Hawthorne Handicap, picks up weight and this time carries 114 pounds, which makes him next to the top in the handicap list.

The others scale downward to Seguro, which gets in with 98 pounds, as if that would be any help.

Sun Beau has never been known as a mudder and he may not fancy the drying out track but Tom Young and his crew worked all night with harrows. Helped by the sun and wind, they may get the track into fairly good shape after the cloudburst of last night.

If the track should remain heavy, Paul Bunyan would have a real winning chance. At a mile an a quarter over a holding and heavy racing strip, he is at his best.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
"Golf's Greatest Teacher"

Is it possible to have a golfing style and to use golfing forms which requires virtually no effort of understanding? Yes, The professional, pinned down to it, often will assert that when he plays golf he doesn't think anything about his swing or his physical exertion. He thinks, he will say, only of his string of shots, and the weather. This is literally true. His detail of swinging, his style and form, requires no effort of understanding. The significance of this, for you, is that a professional does not gain this state of oblivionsness to style and form with his perfection of play, but that, on the contrary, his attainment of it marked the beginning of his development of skill as a golfer. There are wonderful short-cuts to good golf. I like to help you find them. There's a great one for you. Fashion your golf henceforth to it and your shots and your general average of play will improve proportionately.

Canzoneri-Perlick Bout Called Off

New York, Aug. 29 (INS)—Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion of the world, today called off his fight with Henry Perlick, in Bayonne, N. J., which was twice postponed.

Tony will begin active training for his 15-round championship bout with Jack Kid Berg, which takes place in the Polo Grounds on September 12.

Cauliflower Chatter

The Charley Retzlaff-Joe Sekyra bout, a New York feature, has been set back until next Tuesday night.

Retzlaff refused an offer of $12,500 from Billy Ahearn to meet Ernie Schaaf at the Boston Garden. Retzlaff doesn't want any part of Schaaf.

Jack Sharkey has gone to New Hampshire for the week-end. Aces to do a little training for his bout with Primo Carnera which takes place next month.

Al Lacy is tuning Schaaf up for his 12-round tussle with Victorio Campolo which will take place on Monday night in Brooklyn.

Andy Callahan wants to meet Lou Brouillard in a bout for the New England welterweight championship. Callahan points out that the class weight in Massachusetts is 148 pounds.

All on the Road Back

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY

Fight fans are rubbing their eyes, pinching themselves and taking the pledge.

First, they read that Benny Leonard, former light-weight champion, intends in his comeback campaign, to win all the titles up to the light heavyweight class.

Then they read that Jack Dempsey had started a comeback.

And, on top of this, they read that both Louis Angel Firpo, Wild Bull of the Pampas, and Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight champion, are also planning comebacks.

About the only announcement that could cause more consternation in the ranks of fight fans would be that the Civil War would be fought over again on the grounds that the original was in the bag or that Jim Corbett had actually picked the winner of a heavyweight bout.

If all the boys survive their comeback campaigns, we will see fight history repeated.

Hold on to your rain checks, and probably you will see Dempsey and Tunney again fighting for the world title after Mickey Walker has disposed of Max Schmeling, and, in turn, has been beaten by Dempsey.

RUTH GAINED TEN POINTS IN BATTING

Chicago, Aug. 29 (AP)—Al Simmons' bid to retain the American League individual batting title has been done no good by an enforced layoff or more than a week due to an infected leg.

The semi-official averages, which include Thursday's games, show Babe Ruth gained 10 points to 381, with Simmons only four points out in front. Lou Gehrig, the other member of the Yankee slugging firm, also took advantage of Simmons' vacation to jump into a tie in total hits, with .374.

Gehrig held sole possession of three other leadership. He had batted in 138 runs, had scored 130 times and had a total bases collection of 350.

The Babe cracked out three more runs during the week to raise his total to 37, three more than Gehrig's total. Benny Chapman, the Yankees' sprinting outfielder, stole six more bases and had 51 for the season, while Earl Webb of Boston, picked up another pair of two-base hits and had a total of 53, 11 short of George Burns' all-time major league record.

Roy Johnson, Detroit outfielder, led the field in triples with 15.

Earl Webb Up With Leaders

Following Simmons and Ruth among the regulars were: Morgan, Cleveland, .358; Gehrig, New York, .354; Webb, Boston, .351; Alexander, Detroit, .341; Goslin, St. Louis, .337; Cochrane, Philadelphia, .337; West, Washington, .336; Averill, Cleveland, .333.

The team leaderships remained the same as last week. Cleveland improved its collective batting average one point to .298, while the A's fielded for .977, to shade Washington by one point. The St. Louis Browns completed six double plays to reach a total of 138 for the campaign.

Robert Moses Grove failed to create a new American League record for constructive victories when the St. Louis Browns beat him, but the defeat did not drag the Athletics' fireballer down to within hollering distance of the pack.

He had the handsome record of 25 triumphs against three defeats, and still had a mark of 20 victories at which to shoot, and plenty of time in which to accomplish the feat. George Earnshaw's idleness helped Grove to move into the lead in strikeouts with 136 in 34 games. Earnshaw had 135 in the same number of engagements.

Kearns Posts $5000 Bond for Appearance

Chicago, Aug. 29 (INS)—Jack Kearns, fight promoter and manager, today was under $5000 bond to appear here September 22, when a ruling will be made by Judge Trude on the petition of Mrs. Legana Kearns for temporary alimony.

Kearns offered affidavits from Atlantic City, N. J., to show that there are no records of his marriage ceremony there, although Mrs. Kearns says the wedding was performed by "City Clerk Burns."

Mrs. Kearns produced copies of letters, telegrams bearing Kearns' name, and showed a wedding ring she said the promoter gave her.

Diamond Dust

By JOE CASHMAN

Our Braves return to action over in Brooklyn this afternoon when they open a two-game series with the Robins. They will return to the Wigwam on Monday for a three-day engagement with the Giants and then go away again until the last two days of the season.

The Warriors gained one-half game on the sixth-place Pirates during their vacation as the Smoky City outfit dropped a verdict to the Cards yesterday. A margin of a game and a half now separates the two clubs.

The Cardinals' triumph, incidentally, increased their lead to 10½ games over the second-place Giants, who were idle. The champions trailed most of the way but they put over a four-run rally in the eighth to win out 6 to 4.

As a result of Cleveland's victory over St. Louis, there is now a difference of only three games between the fifth and last place clubs in the American League. The Browns, at the top of the second division, are one game ahead of the Tigers, who are one game ahead of the Red Sox, who are one game ahead of the White Sox.

The Athletics increased their lead in the American League race to 13 full games by staging a three-run rally in the eighth and scoring a 5 to 4 victory over the Yanks.

Lou Gehrig hit his 35th home run of the season, and three times he and his mates gave Charlie Ruffing a lead over the champions, but Large C. couldn't hold it. Roy Mahaffey, starting Mackian flinger, was taken out for a pinch-hitter, but gets credit for the win, his 15th in 17 starts.

Bob Quinn is opposed to double-headers, synthetic or otherwise. He had every reason during the heavy morning rain for calling off Friday's game and booking a double-header for today, yet he started the contest and was actually disappointed because it had to be called at 5:15 p. m. after only three innings had been played.

The Yanks will make their local last appearance of the season at Braves Field tomorrow. With Babe Ruth hitting home runs with startling regularity these days, a banner crowd is bound to turn out in the hope of seeing him bashing a drive or two over the distant Wigwam barriers.

Wanderers Clash With West India A

The league-leading Wanderers of the Massachusetts State cricket league will meet with their stiffest opposition of the season when they clash with their greatest rivals, the West India A eleven at Franklin Field today in the feature event of the schedule.

Other cricket contests are scheduled for the Dorchester crease, the West India B eleven opposing the Windsors and the Athletics and St. Georges clashing.

Other games today have the Arlington Mills and Rockland at Lawrence, Brockton and Mystic at Brockton, Standards and Everett at Everett, and University and Bermudians at North Brighton.

Hall's Nine Wins

Hall's All Stars took the second game in the Somerville championship series, beating Finast, 6 to 5, at Richard Trum field.

DAILY TRUE STORY

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

ANNE REALLY SEEMED TO REGRET HER REFUSAL

"NOTHING TODAY, Mr. Hawkins."

It was the same old answer, but, then, Jack Hawkins hadn't really expected any other. He had gone to the theatrical agency more through habit than because of anything else. That and to see the girl who had just spoken to him.

Somehow the continued bad news—that no producer was seeking his talents as an actor—was easier when it came from her. She really seemed to regret it, and whenever he came in, which was almost daily, she never failed to smile a greeting. Jack had heard others address her as Anne, but in their brief business relationship he had never ventured more than Miss Kent.

He managed now to return her smile with one of his own. No other applicants were waiting to demand her attention and it was pleasant to linger for a moment.

"There never is anything, is there?" he asked, half jestingly. But when she answered she was serious.

"I really wish that I—that is, we—could get you something," she said. "But they aren't producing half the shows they used to. There are so many actors at liberty. If you could just see our files."

"I know," answered Jack. "I think my name is on every file in town. "Gee," he went on, for he was young and hadn't lost his enthusiasm. "I wish I could get a chance—a decent chance. But if things keep on like this I'll probably end up as a subway guard."

"If anything does turn up—" she began.

"I know you will, Miss Kent," he interrupted. "You've been very kind and patient with me coming in here every day like this. And I appreciate it."

As Jack left the office he wished that he could show his appreciation with something more substantial than words. And not only his appreciation, but his liking for Anne Kent. But that he couldn't do. What little money he had left had to go for food and rent and a decent appearance When it was gone—but he didn't like to think of that.

In a Day Dream
Dinner and Theater

He thought instead of how fine it would be if he could say to her, "Are you doing anything this evening?" And, then, when she said she wasn't he would ask her to have dinner with him and then go to a show. Later they might dance a little and then he would take her home in a taxicab, sitting close to her and not talking about how hard it was for an actor to find a part, but how happy he was to be with her. Just the two of them together. And when they reached her home and he said good night maybe—

He shook off the day-dream. It wasn't any use thinking about it. Such things took money and he just didn't have it.

Jack was eating breakfast the next morning when his landlady called him to the telephone.

"It's that agency," she said For, like all theatrical landladies, she knew al there was to know about her lodgers.

Anne Kent's voice came over the wire when Jack answered the phone.

"Mr. Worthington is casting for his new show," she said. "He has a part which will just fit you. Go right around to the Imperial Theater and tell him we sent you. I hope you get it."

Jack managed to stammer his thanks and then hurried through his breakfast and allowed himself the luxury of a cab in hurrying through the streets to the theater.

"What did you say your name was?" asked Worthington, the producer, when Jack had found him directing a rehearsal and had introduced himself

"Never mind," he went on, before Jack could repeat his name. "Here take this script. Study it and come back tomorrow. I'll soon know whether you're any good."

It was a good part; Jack knew that as soon as he had read it When he reported at the theatre again the next morning he was letter perfect, both in the reading of his own part and in the stage directions and cues as well.

It All Came True
Everything He Wanted

Here, you," was Worthington's greeting when he was ready for Jack. "Now, you come in through here and try not to trip over your feet."

The rehearsal went on, long hours of it, and when Worthington finally called a halt he said to Jack, "You can come back tomorrow. We'll see about a contract in a day or two when I can get around to it."

He was about to leave when he remembered It took a lot of courage, but he did it

"Mr. Worthington," he said "if you don't mind I'd like very much to obtain an advance. It's—it's something I just have to have and if you—"

"I never saw an actor that wasn't broke," interrupted the producer. "Usually I don't do it, but this time—well, see Jenkins. He's the treasurer. Tell him I said to give you two hundred. But you'll earn it—every dollar of it."

That night all that Jack had dreamed of came true. He had taken Anne Kent to dinner, then to a current hit, then to a night club and now he was taking her home with a large dent in his two hundred dollars.

"Did Mr. Worthington say anything when you first went to the theater?" she suddenly asked

"He didn't seem to get my neme," answered Jack. "Whyy?" She didn't answer. 'Why do you ask?" he insisted

"It's all right now," she said. "But I was afraid I would have to tell him I had made a mistake. You see, he really asked for a man named Hawkins—Sarly Dawkins—another actor. The names were so much alike that I took a chance and called you This time Jack didn't ask her why. Instead he reached over and took both her hands and told her—everything he had wanted to

STOCKS HIGHER AT FINISH IN WALL STREET

New York, Aug. 29—Active stocks were generally moderately higher at the finish of the short session in Wall Street today.

Although gains were largely fractional, although several leading shares pushed up a point or two, including American Can, Allied Chemical, U. S. Steel, Case, Consolidated Gas, Westinghouse, New York Central, Erie, Baltimore & Ohio, Radio preferred B and Westinghouse Electric.

In the motion picture issues, Warner Brothers common was pushed up a point, and Paramount preferred 2. It was reported that the company expects to get its bank loans paid off by the end of the year. Such issues as Loews, Radio Keith, Fox and Paramount rose fractionally. In the coppers only American Smelting got up a point, but Anaconda, Kennecott and Nevada rose ½ point or more.

Actual gain in copper prices was largely nominal. The copper export report remains almost completely at a standstill, but some metal has been sold at 7½ cents a pound, which against a flat price of 7½ recently. The large producers, however, remain entirely out of the market, holding out for 8 cents.

Wall Street has been encouraged by the better tone in bonds, particularly the long depressed railroad liens, which was manifest for the fourth successive day today. In view of the unsatisfactory character of many railway earnings reports, however, the turn has been somewhat puzzling, and has started rumors that a large pool has been formed to support the market.

In the railway stocks, Northern & Western, usually a wide mover, sold 5 points higher. A news ticker analysis indicated that the $10 annual dividend is being earned by a wide margin and that it is possible that the usual extra may be declared this autumn. The extra a year ago was $2 share.

F. Reveley at Leipzig, made public by the Department of Commerce. The engine weighs 2.42 lbs per hp., a considerable reduction from the 6.18 lbs. now for marine and industrial Diesel engines.

STORES' SALES ARE LARGER

New York, Aug. 29—W. T. Grant Co. reports its stores' sales for the first half of 1931 totaled $34,202,244 against $31,404,161 in the like 1930 period. Net profits were $1,333,178 against $935,011 a year ago.

Grant had in operation 575 stores July 31, an increase of 25 since January 31 and 70 since July 31, 1930. It is continuing its expansion and approximately 50 stores will be opened the remainder of 1931.

The increase in sales in first half of its fiscal year, it states, was accounted for by the opening of 143 additional stores, for sales in dollars of identical stores during the 1931 period below a year before.

The increase in net was attributable to economies resulting from more efficient methods of merchandising to meet new conditions.

Port of Boston

BY JAMES J. DELANEY

Boston shipping returned to normal, despite the fact that a heavy fog which shrouded the entire Atlantic coast and was described as a "pea soup" for around Cape Cod prevailed yesterday.

Foreign and coastwise, outbound and inbound shipping started to move regularly. Reports of no trouble in all throughout Thursday night were made. Scheduled ships are arriving with little delay.

The Japanese steamer Tokai Maru, carrying local cargo from Oriental and Pacific ports, was anchored off Shoveful Light vessel, after groping her way through the murk to Nantucket Sound, before she moved up to her berth at the Army Base.

The Yankee Line steamer West Harcuvar had practically the same difficulty anchoring off Handkerchief Light vessel on her way here from Philadelphia, to load cargo for Hamburg and Bremen.

HARBOR VISIT

Inspection of Boston Harbor terminals was made by John T. Donahue, assistant general passenger agent of the Dollar Lines, who came to Boston. He made a visit to the Maritime Association of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, where he was received by Frank S. Davis, manager, informing him, among other things, that the round-the-world passenger business of the line is holding up remarkably well in spite of the slump in business depression. He was accompanied by I. T. Sarge, special passenger agent in this port.

TANKER DIVERTED

While bound for Boston from Houston, Texas, the tanker Oregon of the Texas Company was diverted by radio to Providence, R. I., according to wireless messages received in this port.

"PAT" COYNE GOES

After two years attached to the recruiting station at the Lighthouse Service Guard at the Custom House, Patrick I. Coyne, "pilot water tender, received notice of his transfer to duty on the U. S. C. G. destroyer Wilkes, based at Base 3, East Boston. The change goes into effect Tuesday. Coyne, whose home originally was in Weymouth but who now resides in Hingham, came into the Coast Guard service from the United States Navy. He has recently come to the fore for duty as a wrestler. He is one of the singers in the Knights of Columbus Choral Society.

FIRE IN HATCH

While Boston bound to discharge 1203 tons of bulk oil, the steamer New Columbia, of the Eisner Brothers' Line, sister ship of the steamer New Brighton now in this port, caught fire in No. 3 hatch at 12 o'clock, N. J. Boston was advised today. She was looked for here Sept. 1

BIG GAS CARGO

Carrying almost 3,000,000 gallons of gasoline, one-half of which she pumped into tanks on shore at Savannah, the tanker Pan Arabian began discharging the remainder in Chelsea this morning. She loaded at San Nicholas, Aruba.

Senator Johnson Speaks Truly

Senator Hiram Johnson, of California, does a distinct public service in calling attention to the dangerous purposes that are cloaked in innocent appearing words, such as "moratorium," and "revision," as applied to the debts owing the United States by its European debtors—"WEASEL WORDS," as the late President Roosevelt described them.

Ever since the close of the war, there has been a distinct purpose on the part of our European debtors to escape the payment of their just obligations to us.

Repudiation is an ugly word, and credit is an element of national strength which no country likes to part with.

But in the European mind there is DEEPLY IMPLANTED the feeling that there is some reason which they find it hard to express clearly why we should neither expect nor press for the repayment of our wartime loans.

The difficulty of communicating this view to the American people is recognized both at home and abroad by the international bankers, who are foremost in framing theories and sophistries to render the idea of debt cancellation less unpalatable to our people.

But the cancellation of the European debts is what they are aiming at and pursuing steadfastly, if not noisily.

Senator Johnson perceives this and calls our attention to the soft tread with which the advocates of debt remission are approaching their goal.

The recent difficulty experienced by Germany in meeting its short term loans was eagerly seized upon, to apply the entering wedge of a "MORATORIUM."

This wedge apparently sticks, and now is followed up by the proposal to "CONSIDER" the cancellation of debts.

Far be it from the minds of the international bankers to cancel the European debt, with the inevitable result that the American taxpayer would be obliged to shoulder the cost of the European war!

Oh, no—nothing of that sort! Nothing could be further from the banker mind than that.

And yet, SENATOR JOHNSON SPEAKS WITH FLAWLESS ACCURACY when he says that THAT IS JUST WHAT THEY HAVE IN MIND.

WE HAVE TAKEN THE FIRST STEP—"MORATORIUM."

WE ARE BIDDEN NOW TO TAKE THE SECOND—"CONSIDERATION."

Cancellation will be reserved for the final act of this little drama, and will break upon our vision as the curtain falls upon America's hopes for the honest repayment of the advances made by our people to rescue their European allies.

Hand Signal in Driving

What has become of the hand signal in auto driving?

As a condition of obtaining their licenses, the autoists were required to learn these signals in the interest of safety. They now seem to be as extinct as the dodo.

The left-hand extended was a semaphore of caution to the cars following. Clumsy as they may have been, you knew at least the car ahead was going to do something out of the ordinary and you were placed on guard.

Many a collision was averted; many a life was saved.

The hand signal requires no extraordinary or exhausting effort. All it requires is a bit of thoughtfulness, of consideration for the other people on the highway.

If we have gotten so selfish, so inconsiderate or so lazy that we abandon this simple system of precaution, it is about time that someone took us to task and read the riot act to us.

Oceanic Cocktails

The ocean, according to the chemist, Dr. Henry Arnstein, is full of alcohol. After reading of all these rum-runners getting sent to the bottom, it doesn't surprise us much.

But that's not the reason, it seems. He says it is because of the decomposition of marine life and sea plants, especially seawed. The Eskimos, that reminds us, brew a heady sort of vodka from seaweed.

The trouble with the ocean as a source of genial potables is the excess of potassium, sodium, chloride and hydrogen sulphate, which gives it a horrible taste. And yet a liking may be acquired for it, we suppose, as for bathtub gin or South End moonshine.

Just Folks

Lifetime

It isn't any trouble for the bird to learn to fly.
The dog picks up its instinct in the twinkling of an eye.
But life has countless lessons and endless blows to give
Before a man can truly say that he has learned to live.

The lifetime of a bird is brief; give dogs their food and drink,
They do not ever lie awake at night to plan and think.
But man has endless problems to be solved as best he can
And he must suffer many woes to learn to be a man.

He follows this and follows that to find his folly out,
In search of peace and pleasure long he gropes his way about.
His blunders and his failures cause him suffering and distress,
For age discovers truths to him which youth could never guess.

He slowly learns that character by strength of will is made.
He had to teach himself to stand when others flee, afraid.
So much there is that puzzles man at every bend and turn
That seventy years are not enough for all he wants to learn.

He reads, he thinks, experiments, builds first his hope on gold
To find at last that wealth and fame bring little he can hold,
And dwelling on the lasting joys which friendship had to give
He sighs to think that he must die just when he'd learned to live.

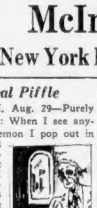
New York Day by Day

Personal Piffle

NEW YORK, Aug. 29—Purely a personal piffle: When I see anyone sucking a lemon I pop out in a sweat and I can never remember what Galileo did. I named a beautiful pair of twins Joy and Hope and they never forgave me. When mentally distracted — and who is not? — I pencil mustaches on magazine illustrations.



A hurdy gurdy at twilight gives me the blues. Ted Lewis' battered hat detracts from a smooth act. I once bet on a horse at Latonia that ran the other way and Claude Shafer fell out of the grandstand laughing. My only taste of absinthe was at the Old Absinthe House in New Orleans.

The most uncomfortable night journey was on the famous Blue Train. "Coin" Harvey's son Tom rescued me from drowning as I sank for the third time. My daily cigarette limit is three—one after breakfast, two after dinner. My wife and I slam doors when angry. I'm no, afraid of spiders.

I became ill in a restaurant discovering a broken off tooth in a bite of salad and had to leave. On my way home I discovered the tooth was my own. I hate no one but there are some I do not care to know. Every so often I have a craving for pop corn balls and black licorice.

Early fall is my favorite season in New York. I've always wanted to shoot craps with the Marx Brothers. A doorman at the St. Regis calls me "Mr. Frish." I was whiter than a sheet at my wedding. I dislike jewelry, apple strudel, bridge, Shakespearian plays and sitting in any sort of a breeze.

I never sleep a wink the night before an ocean voyage or train trip. And almost once every three months I go an entire night without a wink of sleep. The only card game I like is seven up. The biggest fright of my life was when an organist's monkey ran up a spout and jumped into a bedroom window.

My hand writing changes every few years. I enjoy reading small town newspapers, eating in Pullman diners, registering at strange hotels, prowling around toy stores and watching audiences arrive at the theater. I turned my head before they sprung the trap at a Kentucky hanging.

The only city that ever looked just as I pictured it is San Diego, Cal. The finest residences for the size of the city are in Kansas City, Mo. No matter how rosy things are I invariably find something to worry about. I carry a 5 and 10 cent store glass ash tray on all travels. My Boston knows when I am depressed and jumps into the side of my chair and lies very still.

Letters standing out in my memory as splendid symbols of friendship were from Meredith Nicholson, Courtney Ryley Cooper, Ray Long, Roy Howard, Rupert Hughes, Charles G. Norris, Irvin Cobb, Ed. J. Nolan, Minnie C. Vesey and Raymond Temple. All are preserved in a safety deposit box.

The first time I heard of Royal Gorge I thought they were speaking of a banquet. My boyhood hero was Blondin who walked over Niagara Falls on a rope. I have been sent more than 800 remedies for hiccups and turned them into an article for a magazine. Dr. George Rockwell's new vaudeville act is the most hilarious of the season.

The most expressive term for getting drunk is "on the loose." The most beautiful word in English is "eloquent" and the ugliest "ornery." John Charles Thomas is the most self effacing professional singer I know. Neither my wife nor I ever spoke harshly to our servants. In California I feel sorry for people in New York and vice versa. The noise of a squeaking ...nge makes me shiver and rub my finger across my teeth. On moonlit nights I think of Sumatra although never there.

My life has been one largely of postponement. I like to drink ice water out of a hand made cup of twirled paper. Of all actresses I remember Julia Arthur most vividly I have solemnly vowed many times never to wear evening clothes again. Julia Sanderson's fluttery little laugh on the radio amuses me. Straw hats hurt my head. I can never find a blotter when I need one. Lillian Gish once mistook me for a waiter captain. One of my most self effacing friends is a loud mouthed stage comedian. I always stop and listen in on street arguments.

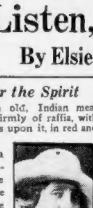
Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Room for the Spirit

I HAVE an old, Indian meal basket, woven firmly of raffia, with a design of birds upon it, in red and black.



Elsie Robinson

There is a break in that design . . . a little open space where the spreading wings do not quite meet. The squaw who made that basket left that space so "the spirit could go in and out."

She could not have told you what she meant by "the spirit." But she was sure that there was something in a man's life and a man's work beside the man himself.

She looked at the growing corn. There was a Mystery in the growing corn. There was Something that brought the corn out of the hard, dry seed, sent it pushing up through the dark earth, made it break into blade and blossom and fruitful ear.

And there was the same Mystery in a man. Something made a man grow . . . Something filled a man with desire to love and fight and dream and create. Always there was that Mystery in even the commonest man . . . and in the commonest thing that a man did.

So the squaw left a little break in the design she wove. Not because she thought an actual spirit moved in and out of the basket, but because a Mystery moved in and out of the life of a man . . . made him.

Always there was that Mystery—

Always man touched it when he made things—

Always there was something wonderful about the work that a man made . . . something that made it more than just a piece of work. That was why good work made a man proud and happy . . . made him honored by the tribe.

You laugh? You say that was "just savage superstition?" I wonder.

Think of the things that other people made by hand—people who were not savages.

Look at old tapestries and carvings . . . hand-made nails, hand-hewn beams—look at the little oak desk your grandfather made on winter evenings and the bed spread your grandmother wove, working beside him. Queerly, uneven work—not at all like the perfect, machine-made stuff. Yet see how carefully, how lovingly, it was made. They had a feeling about machine-made work. Ask old workers and they will tell you that it was GOOD to make things with one's hands—

It did something TO a man . . . it did something FOR a man. Out of that work came something more than a desk or a bed spread.

It gave a man a chance to express himself. To express something that moved mysteriously within himself. There was an Adventure and a Mystery in making a desk by hand, in weaving a bed spread by hand—an Adventure and Mystery you can't find with a machine.

Was that why men and women seemed happier, why life seemed fuller, in those old days even though they had none of our "modern conveniences?"

Was that why they were willing to work longer hours at smaller wages—why they so often worked for no wages at all, just for the joy of the thing?

(Can you imagine a man running a riveting machine, just for the joy of the thing?)

Was there room "for the Spirit to move" when a man made things with his own hands?

And is the Spirit shut out when the work is run through a machine?

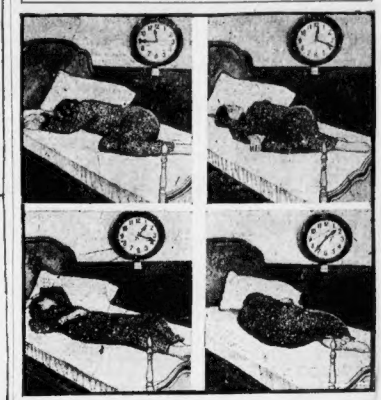
How Well Do You Sleep?

Science Again Upsets Popular Beliefs—This Time About Sleep



TWISTS AND TURNS OF A PERSON ENJOYING A PERFECTLY NORMAL SLEEP

Everybody knows that tired people sleep better than people who have had plenty of rest. Everybody knows that eating before going to bed is bad for a night of good rest. Everybody believes that a hot bath just before bedtime helps to make one fall asleep.

Everybody knows these things BUT NONE OF THEM IS TRUE.

Science has been observing many groups of people in their sleep. Actual records are kept of how people sleep and of their before-bedtime activities.

When a person tells you, "I tossed and turned all night and slept hardly a wink," no doubt he or she slept as well as the average person, because everyone "tosses and turns all night." Most people don't remember the "tossing and turning."

One of the first things discovered by the investigating Dr. Johnson and his associates at the Mellon Institute was that no one lies still all night as many people believe they do. Actual photographs taken at intervals show that the average person turns over or changes position about every fifteen minutes.

Some of the twists and turns taken by a sleeping person enjoying a normal healthy sleep are shown in the pictures above. A person who remembers these movements thinks he has not slept very well—but actually he has slept well. The average person does not remember this.

An article in tomorrow's American Weekly, in the Boston Sunday Advertiser, tells of many interesting phenomena of sleep.

JEANNE D'ARC LISTENING TO THE SPIRITS

"Oh, Rouen, I fear you will one day repent my death!"

"Water, water!"

These were the last words of Joan of Arc, dying at the stake 500 years ago, and as they were repeated by Mademoiselle Paulette Burbail, recently, re-enacting that tragedy at Versailles, the great audience, thrilled by her dramatic genius, shuddered in silence, then roared its applause.

It was the climax of the pageant commemorating the anniversary of Joan of Arc's death. Mlle. Burbail had played many parts of the career of the Maid of Orleans.

At the end of this great spectacle they went to remove Mlle. Burbail from the stake after the baseless colored lights had been extinguished. Her body lay limp against her fetters.

When she opened her eyes the doctors knew that this girl who played the part of Joan of Arc was an idiot.

Tomorrow, in the American Weekly, in the Boston Sunday Advertiser, you will read the whole story of Mlle. Paulette Burbail; how she played her part, how she studied for it and why she was chosen, of all the maids in France, to portray the Maid of Orleans.
